$500,000 for the Air
—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1925, by the Star Company.

SUNDAY was the 148th anniversary of the adoption by Congress of Betsy Ross' flag, the Stars and Stripes. No one can deny that the flag has had 148 years of glory and decency.

It's a fine thing to go through 148 years never asking for anything that doesn't belong to you, and when forced to fight, always winning.

IF ADVICE could save, we should all be saved. President Lowell of Harvard says the world needs foresight, and tells seniors "to search for what is real truth."

What is truth, said jesting Pilate, and would not wait for an answer? How shall a Harvard senior, gazing into the big world, like a chick fresh from its shell and still inside the incubator, know what the truth is?

DR. FOSDICK, another clergyman, says "the lawlessness of the American people is appalling."

Yet things have been worse. We have murders, but fewer than one for every hundred thousand people. They had one in Adam and Eve's family, when there were only four human beings altogether. Cain, killing his brother Abel, cut down the population of the earth 25 per cent.

THE REVEREND FOSDICK complains of our "jazz" in music, free verse in poetry, and in morals "do as you please." But what's all that compared to Sodom and Gomorrah.

We are doing well, compared with the ancients.

THE AMERICAN Society for the Control of Cancer is more cheerful than Dr. Fosdick. It reports excellent progress. Thousands of lives, now needlessly sacrificed, would be saved, if people were informed and would keep away from quacks. The society denies the statement recently made at a convention of doctors that "no one really knows anything about cancer."

"CANCER is not contagious or inherited," says the American Society. Take the cancer in the beginning when it is only local.

PETER DUTKA, ambitious Czecho-Slovakian, came here at thirty, worked in coal mines, saved money and learned English. He already spoke five other languages. He went to Pennsylvania State College, studied until four in the morning, cut his sleep to three or four hours, and he gets his degree today.

THOSE that give it to him will see a determined emaciated man, his weight cut down twenty-six pounds for lack of sleep. He will be praised, and deserves it.

But, he could have done as well without that degree, getting knowledge more slowly.

But never in his life will he be able to make up that loss of sleep.

Remember, young gentlemen, money gone, you can get it back. But nervous energy gone, through lack of sleep, you will never recover.

DANIEL GUGGENHEIM, who has found a great fortune underground, now gives to the University of New York $300,000, to be used in the air.

His money will be spent especially on engineering problems connected with flying.

ANYTHING that helps flying is good, and Daniel Guggenheim deserves public thanks. Possibly he may make a little more money, and teach a thousand young Americans to fly.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE orders flying as part of the course at Annapolis, and may issue a similar order, through the Secretary of War, for West Point.

IF MR. GUGGENHEIM and others will encourage industrial flying as President Coolidge

Death Pact Mystery Witness Found

$33,800 THEFT AT FALL RIVER CITY HALL

GIRL ASKS $20,000 IN 'SHORTER LEG' SUIT

Bernice Watson, nineteen-year-old Lynn girl, who is suing Lynn doctor for $20,000 in novel damage case. She charges that one of her legs is shorter than the other as the result of an alleged improper setting at the doctor's hands. She injured the limb while coasting. Subsequently, she says, she was obliged to visit specialists. Her father also seeks $4,000 for doctor's bills. He is pressing a separate suit.

LYNN DOCTOR IS SUED BY CRIPPLED PATIENT

Salem, June 16.—Bernice Watson, nineteen-year-old Lynn girl, will today show a jury in Superior court how her left leg is shorter than its right limb, as a result of alleged improper setting and treatment by Dr. Harvey F. Newhall, Lynn physician.

Miss Watson asks a value of $20,000 on the alleged deformity. Her father seeks $4,000 for medical bills and other expenses.

The pretty plaintiff alleges that following an accident while she was tobogganing near her home on Beacon Hill avenue, Lynn, on the night of December 19, 1922, her left leg was fractured above the knee. Dr. Newhall set the fracture and treated her, she alleges, and after she had been under his care for some time her left leg was found to be somewhat shorter than its mate.

Later she was under the care of a Boston specialist who operated twice. She claims it was necessary to have a piece of the shin of the good leg grafted onto the injured member.

Miss Watson's counsel resorted to a law seldom referred to when they called the defendant to testify first. Dr. Newhall denied the treatment was improper, his defence being that the break did not respond to treatment.

PAYROLL AND CHECKS STOLEN AS CLERK IS CALLED TO TELEPHONE

Fall River, June 16.—A box containing $33,800 in currency and negotiable securities was stolen from a desk in City Hall while the clerk supposed to be watching it was busy at a telephone, it was announced today.

There is no clue. The police, however, believe the thief to be someone exceptionally familiar with the details of arrangements at the hall.

That part of the stolen treasure which was in cash was to have been paid out to city employes today.

City Treasurer Augusts Chouinard, in making announcement of the loss today, said the box was stolen yesterday afternoon.

He delayed making it public on the very slender chance that it had been mislaid and forgotten and would be found again.

Two clerks were in the room where the box was kept, Harlan W. Littlefield, a clerk, was in charge.

The box rested on a desk within easy reach of anyone standing outside the counter. The other man left the room for a moment. Littlefield was counting bills when he received a telephone call, purporting to be from an official of the telephone company.

The voice asked him to test an extension line, some little distance away. Littlefield did as he was asked, and when he turned around, he told the police, the box was gone.

A tall, dark young man who had been noticed loitering in the corridors is being sought by the police.

Payment on the checks has been stopped. According to Chouinard, the cash was not much more than $3,000.

POLICE LIEUTENANT DIES IN AUTO CRASH

Newburyport, June 16.—While on the way to witness the graduation of their son from Colby College, Maine, Lieut. Charles L. McHay of the New Bedford Police Department was killed and his wife probably fatally injured when their auto struck a pole on the turnpike today.

Two children of the couple, Arthur nine and Muriel six, who were cut and bruised, were taken to the home of Mrs. Leonora Towne in Newbury.

The accident occurred on a hill in Byfield near Dummer Academy, when the machine skidded on the wet road, crashed into a telegraph pole and overturned. McHay was instantly killed and his wife was taken to an Ipswich hospital suffering from a fractured jaw, internal injuries and cuts on the face and scalp.

The party left New Bedford early today to reach Waterville in time for the graduation of Louis McHay from Colby this afternoon.

Lieutenant McHay was a special instructor in the New Bedford Police Department of which he had been a member for twenty-six years.

M'MILLAN IS SET FOR POLE HOP TOMORROW

Donald B. MacMillan, Arctic explorer, who will sail tomorrow in search of the missing Roald Amundsen and a new polar continent, spent a busy morning at the Charlestown Navy Yard and then hastened to the City Club for one more farwell luncheon.

The Northland traveler superintended today the final touches to preparations for the departure, and by tomorrow morning everything will be in readness to cast off the Peary and head for the ice country via Wiscasset, Me.

At the luncheon given MacMillan and members of his party by the Boston City Club, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Douglas

BISHOP AT HARVARD SEES BRIGHT FUTURE

"A coming generation of such material prosperity and power as would amaze us if we could see it now," was predicted by Bishop William Lawrence, Fellow of Harvard College, in his address to the class of 1925 in Appleton Chapel, Harvard, today.

The speech of the Bishop, who is a graduate of the class of '71, began the Class Day exercises to which the seniors were summoned by bugle calls. The program occupies every hour of the day and extends through out the evening.

Bishop Lawrence called attention to the fact that the seniors were being graduated seven years after the World War, while the speaker was graduated seven years after the Civil War.

He told of what the sacrifices of Harvard men in the service of their country had done for him, and counseled his hearers to keep green the memory of those "Harvard crusaders who, whether in France or

Convent Novice Is Saved From Death Leap

New Haven, Ct., June 16 (A.P.)—Suffering from some form of mental trouble, Josephine Brezile, twenty-four, a novice at the Sacred Heart Institute for Children, attempted to jump off the roof of the building today, but was finally rescued by a fireman.

For nearly an hour she stood poised on a narrow ledge three stories from the ground, threatening to jump, while nuns from the school, firemen and policemen pleaded with her.

It was said Miss Brezile had said she intended to kill herself when about to be separated from her preceptress, for whom she is said to have had a great fondness.

BIG BONFIRE TO OPEN JUNE 17

Men prominent in the affairs of the tate and nation are gathering in Charlestown today to participate in the elaborate exercises being held in connection with the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill.

Five banquets by various civic and patriotic organizations feature today's program and at these the distinguished visitors are speakers.

A bonfire, one hundred feet high, will be touched off promptly at midnight. The bonfire will be held in Sullivan square and the flames will be visible for miles about.

In the interest of "law and order" and kindred things, 500 uniformed policemen and 31 sergeants have been placed in the police detail for tonight and tomorrow.

In addition, for some reason not

C. R. DAS, INDIAN HOME RULE LEADER, IS DEAD

Darjiling, India, June 16 (A.P.)—C. R. Das, Indian home rule leader, is dead. He was former President of the Indian National Congress and elected Mayor of Calcutta in April, 1924.

In 1923, after the Swaraj party won an election in the province of Bengal, Das declined the invitation of Earl Lytton, the Governor, to form a government. He explained the Swaraj party, the Indian Home Rulers, were pledged to put an end to the diarchy which governs India, so long as they would be unable to accomplish if they accepted office. Das was the chief lieutenant of Gandi, the Non-Co-Operationist leader, and was one of the most prominent advocates of Indian independence without violence.

STORM FELLS N. H. TREES AND WRECKS PHONE LINES

Concord, N. H., June 16.—Telephone officials reported heavy damage from fallen trees following a high wind that swept the State early today, traveling almost directly south. Breaks in lines were reported from Pike, N. H., Bradford, on the Maine line, over the northern road from Concord to White River Junction and from Bedford and Derry. Telephone officials said three days will be required to repair the damage, although no poles were known to be down.

WASHOUT CAUSES FATAL WRECK ON LACKAWANNA R. R.

Hackettstown, N. J., June 16 (A.P.)—At least 17 persons were reported dead and 80 injured in the wreck of a Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad train at Rockport, near here, early today. Many of the injured are in a serious condition and may die.

Many of the injured were sent to the Easton Hospital, suffering from severe scalds from escaping steam.

The accident occurred during a severe electrical storm. Seven cars of the train left the tracks. Both engineer and fireman were killed.

The 185 passengers on the train were to have sailed today from Hoboken for European countries. There were ten cars on the train. The train was bound from Chicago for Hoboken.

A number of the injured were rushed to hospitals in Dover and other nearby communities. Some of the injured men were reported to have died on the way. Soon after the accident 15 bodies were taken from the wreckage including those of the engineer, fireman and brakeman.

The engine was buried beneath the first two cars. All extra employes of the Lackawanna for miles around were called into service to aid in the rescue work.

A washout caused by the storm was blamed for the mishap. An official investigation is under way.

When the crash came the first coach was hurled half-way over the top of the overturned locomotive. Men and women fought madly to work their way out of coaches. The locomotive blew up and filled the air with steam. Passengers said they were unable to see more than a foot in front of them.

LOVE PACT MYSTERY MAN GRILLED BY COPS

The "mysterious witness," sought by the police in connection with the Wellesley Farms shooting, which resulted in the death of 15-year-old Priscilla Amidon and the wounding of her sweetheart, Sterling Mills, was found today. He is George Cook and he lives on Manor road, in the Overbrook section of Wellesley.

It was he who was the first to find the dying girl and upon his story the authorities largely depend for their decision as to whether criminal prosecution against young Mills will follow.

Cook has been wanted for questioning as to the position of the revolver and the girl's body when he came upon the scene.

With the finding of Cook was revealed a portion of the wounded

THOUSANDS DELAYED BY SUBWAY CRASH

Trolley traffic from the Park street station of the subway, West, was tied up for an hour, and thousands of office and shop-bound workers were made late today by the derailing of two cars in the Park street loop.

Many of the passengers in the stalled cars, impatient over the long wait, alighted from the cars and continued their journeys intown on foot, or by "lifts" in automobiles.

In the height of the morning rush hour, the trolley pole of a Huntington avenue-Cypress street car snapped while the car was rounding

GIRL'S MOTHER CLEARS BOY IN WELLESLEY 'LOVE PACT' MYSTERY

MRS. AMIDON DOESN'T DOUBT SUICIDE PACT STORY

boy's statement which has not been made public. Namely, his admission that after he had shot himself he had placed the death weapon beside the girl's body. The purpose of this action, he said, was to keep out of the public mind if the two were discovered dead, any suspicion that he had shot the girl and had then taken his own life.

Cook was to be questioned today by State Detective Michael Fleming in an attempt to determine if the story told by the wounded boy at the Boston Hospital is true. In a preliminary examination, Cook told the story of his finding of the dying girl to Chief of Police Harry Kingsbury.

The latter refused to reach any conclusion regarding Cook's story until he has been questioned by Detective Fleming.

MOVED WEAPON.

To the Boston Evening American, Cook revealed for the first time that upon finding the mortally wounded girl, he had moved the weapon, which he found by the girl's side, out of her reach.

"I was afraid that if I ran for help, leaving the revolver within reach of the girl, she might regain consciousness and again use the weapon. I noticed that there was still life in the body and my first thought was to run back and get something in which to carry the girl out of the woods.

"I had first intended to take the gun out of the woods with me, but one of the other searchers who was close behind me, cautioned me not to touch it. However, I ventured to move the weapon from its position near the girl's right hand to within a foot or two of it.

"I was driving along Glen road when I received the first intimation that a tragedy had been enacted. When I came upon the police ambulance removing the young man to the hospital, I was asked by police to join the hunt for the girl in the woods.

After several minutes' search in the woods I caught sight of the girl's form under a tree. After I had moved the gun, I left the spot and encountering Patrolman David Gallery I showed him where the girl lay.

SAW NO NOTES.

"I did not notice any suicide notes near the girl. But then, I did not make a very careful examination of the spot where I found the girl."

The fact that two suicide notes had been found near the girl's body was admitted today by Assistant District Attorney Dudley P. Ranney, who has been conducting the investigation.

He said the notes are in the possession of Chief Kingsbury, but their contents have not been revealed, out of regard for the feelings of the dead girl's parents.

"If the District Attorney's office feels that withholding certain facts from the public will aid the investigation, it is perfectly proper to do so," said Mr. Ranney.

Mr. Ranney said that thus far no discrepancies in the boy's story had been discovered. He denied that the interview with Cook today would necessarily close the case.

The district attorney's office will be ready at all times to consider new evidence in the case. Thus far everything points to the truth of the boy's statement that he had shot himself after the girl had shot herself."

POLICE HAD NAME.

Cook, who has been sought by police for several days came forward when he felt that this story might be of benefit in the police investigation.

"I did not know that I was the missing witness who has been sought. After the tragedy I had given my name and address to Chief Kingsbury, and I thought that if I was wanted, they would come and see me. When they failed to come and get my story, I decided it was time to come forward."

When Priscilla Amidon went to keep her fatal tryst in Glen road woods, she carried with her from her home a little autograph album which she used as her "love diary."

MILLS' LOVE MESSAGE.

Priscilla's classmates, boys and girls, penned little verses, their names and dates in the album, but the one message treasured by the victim was that recently entered in the bold hand of Sterling Mills who tried to die with her, but is slowly recovering at Newton Hospital, the sight of his right eye forever blotted out by the bullet that entered the right side of his head.

Mills' handwriting in the autograph album was compared by the police with that on one of the two suicide notes found near the unconscious form of the girl in the natural grotto in the woods. It tallied perfectly.

The other farewell note was penned by Priscilla. She signed her name to her note and Sterling Mills signed his note, but the authorities wished to be sure no other hand wrote the so-called "farewell" epistles, the existence of which the Wellesley police denied until today.

Positive proof of the mystery notes and the "love diary," and the fact that the dead girl's mother, Mrs. William R. Amidon of No. 103 Washington street, Wellesley Hills, has accepted young Mills' story that Priscilla sent a fatal bullet into her brain before he took the revolver from her and shot himself in the head, were the outstanding developments in the case today.

The fact that Priscilla Amidon was right handed, was shot in the left temple and that the course of the bullet was such as to tend to preclude the theory that she shot herself, is one of several suspicious features being probed.

MILLS' PLIGHT SERIOUS.

Contrary to rumors in certain circles the case is far from closed. There are many details to be cleared up. It is reported that the officials wish to ascertain whether news of the girl's death, when he became strong enough to have it broken to him, will change Sterling's version of the double shooting.

Mills, who is still on the danger list, showed improvement up to yesterday, when his condition, perhaps partly due to the heat, seemed to become less favorable. His chances for recovery are said to be good.

Mrs. Amidon, in a supplemented interview granted the Boston Evening American, admitted that she feared, early in the investigation, that Priscilla did not commit suicide, but that she was now satisfied the boy had given a correct version of the past.

Mrs. Amidon, a sweet-faced young woman, was moved to tears at times. She said she held no resentment against young Mills.

"I sent a bouquet picked from our garden to Sterling on Sunday," said Priscilla's mother, "and a sympathy note to his mother, for whom I have the most profound sympathy, as she has for my husband and me in our bereavement.

PHONE CO. CAN CUT EXPENSES, MILDRAM SAYS

Substantial economies that can be effected by the New England Telephone operating expenses were outlined today by Samuel H. Mildram at a continued hearing before the Public Utilities Commissioners.

Prior to the testimony of the city of Boston's utility expert, Acting Chairman David A. Ellis of the commission, as the recipient of Corporation Counsel E. Mark Sullivan, reversed his decision of yesterday and decided that no hearing would be held tomorrow, Bunker Hill Day. Charles S. Pierce, general counsel for the telephone company, protested against the delay, declaring the company is losing $1,000,000 a month for each month the new rates are being held up.

Taking up the company's combined maintenance and depreciation expenses, Mildram stated emphatically he is convinced substantial economy in service or operating, while. These expenses, which totaled $8,-786,217 in 1919, jumped to $15,499,-820 in 1924.

Mildram showed the item "other traffic expenses," in the traffic expense account, which was $136,501 in 1919, was reduced to $76,919 in 1920. In 1921 it had increased to $169,470, while in 1922 it had reduced to $78,276," he said. "Coming to the year 1923, however, we find this figure to be nearly $2,000,000, while in 1924 it appears to have been $5,135,176. He declared the large amounts shown in the last two years largely were due to the strike.

He pointed out that the company has embarked on a large program of machine switching installation by which manual operation will be lessened.

"We propose to submit further data bearing upon what may reasonably be expected in the way of reductions in operating expenses and anticipated economies effected," he said.

SCENE AT PERKINS SHOOTING REENACTED

New York, June 16.—With a gun in her hand, Dorothy Perkins, 16-teen-year-old murder trial defendant, was forced to again re-enact the circumstances surrounding the shooting of Thomas Templeton when recalled to the witness stand today. Dorothy grasped the gun, bent finger on the trigger guard; the butt resting against her wrist.

New action was put into the scene by two of the district attorney's assistants—one represented Dorothy's father, with whom she said she was struggling for possession of the gun when it was discharged, and the other "played" Templeton, her suitor, for whose alleged murder she is on trial. Dorothy then acted the scene as she described it in court.

The car ploughed into the rear of a two-car Newton-Watertown train, making the loop just ahead and also empty of passengers.

The Cypress street trolley and rear car of the Newton train were derailed, effectively blocking traffic for a full hour, while other cars inbound from Newton, Brighton, Allston, Brookline, Jamaica Plain and Dudley street formed a long queue out of the subway and along the streets to the west.

GERTRUDE EDERLE, a young American woman planning to swim the English Channel, yesterday swam from New York city to Sandy Hook, eighteen miles, in less than eight hours. She fought the tide during the last hour of her swim and finished, apparently, not fatigued. She goes to England Wednesday, and will train for the Channel swim with Jabez Wolf, famous British veteran, who several times has tried and failed to make the great swim.

GERTRUDE EDERLE, only 19, has broken many swimming records. Pity that her magnificent vitality should be wasted on the Channel. Nancy Hanks, six feet tall, was perhaps as powerful as Miss Ederle. She produced Abraham Lincoln, and that was better than swimming across the Pacific Ocean.

CAREFUL INQUIRY in restaurants shows that corned beef and cabbage is the favorite food of the New York American.

Four thousand five hundred and twelve votes behind came the vegetable dinner. Nevertheless, corned beef, excellent for those that do their muscles, is not good for thinkers.

Any process that makes DECAY difficult, also makes DIGESTION DIFFICULT. While your stomach is struggling with corned beef, or salt pork, your brain cannot do its best. We think and digest with the blood. It can't be in two places at once.

GERMANY IS AGITATED. The great Stinnes house, its heirs quarreling among themselves, appears close to bankruptcy. Other concerns totter. The thorough Germans will make an intensive census and see just how they stand.

IN ONE WAY they stand well.

Butchery of the mark has wiped out their internal debt. The Germans, as a nation, owe nothing, except what they owe the Allies.

Payments to the Allies amounting to only 100 odd million dollars a year at first, less than $2 per German per year, will not strain the resources of such a country.

AN INTENSIVE census of England and France might show conditions more alarming than in Germany.

Luckily for the British, when war began the other countries of the world owed British investors thirty-five thousand million dollars. English capitalists held foreign securities for that amount. During the war that was cut down by half at least. The British government is rich, it has great resources and knows how to lay and collect taxes. The British people are harassed with taxation, and feel poor.

IN FRANCE, it is the other way around. The French government is poor, finds it difficult to collect taxes. The French people, on the other hand, their exports far in excess of their imports, are, as individuals, more prosperous than the British people.

We are the fortunate ones, here in America, both government and people rich. Let's be grateful.

Obey God's Laws, Enjoy Long Life, Says Muldoon

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—Obedience to God's laws is William Muldoon's recipe for a long life. The veteran ex-fighter who trained John L. Sullivan for the championship so preached at a dinner in celebration of his eighteenth birthday.

"Life is a race, run in ten-year laps, a fight in which the rules are made by God," he said. "God's laws are immutable. If you violate them you pay the penalty."

As to modern young people, he said, "Let 'em have their fling."

The Charlestown detail will be augmented by a number of plain clothes men from the Bureau of Criminal Investigation. Of the base detail 150 extra men will go on duty tonight.

Special instructions have been issued to the police to prevent the discharge of fireworks near hospitals and sick rooms, and Police Commissioner Wilson, with Superintendent Crowley, will tour the district tonight just to make sure things are running smoothly.

Captain Michael Goff of the Charlestown station will be in direct charge, however.

The reception committee will have as its chairman, Patrick J. Kyle, president of the Medal of Honor Men of the United States. James F. Maloney will be the master of ceremonies.

The "military" banquet of the United Veterans of Bunker Hill in the Charlestown Armory on Bunker Hill street, was conceived by Senator William J. R. R. WRECK

Reinhold Teschkew, 56, were among the first to make their way out of the couches, and although all were seriously burned, cut and bruised they did considerable to relieve the sufferings of the others.

Three Scranton men were reported to have lost their lives in the wreck.

The dead trainmen are: Fred Lokmis, engineer; Carl Haen, fireman, and Norman J. Banker, conductor.

W. L. Kenny, city passenger agent for the Lackawanna at Buffalo, was on the train. He was riding in the third coach when he was hurled out and scalded on both arms, his face and one leg. He is in the Easton Hospital.

Leopold Neuman, a Chicago steamship agent who arranged the excursion, was uninjured. He hurried to the Easton Hospital, where he looked after the needs of those he could comfort.

WOMAN GIVES ALARM.

Mrs. Duncan Dunn, who lives at the State game farm, about 500 yards from the scene of the crash, sounded the first alarm. The report of an explosion riding above the thunder and raging of a heavy storm sent her to the telephone in an effort to reach Hackettstown physicians.

Her calls were delayed because of a fire raging in a Rockport lumber yard. Relief trains were quickly prepared and rushed to the scene.

Bundled in blankets, bodies of the victims were slowly taken from the wreckage and laid side by side on the grass. The faces of two were scalded beyond recognition.

Passengers in the last two cars, which did not leave the rails, escaped injury.

FUTURE OF U. S. PAINTED AT HARVARD

Bishop Lawrence in Eloquent Plea to the Graduates to Lift World's Burden

this land, gave their lives for liberty and for us."

Turning to the future, Bishop Lawrence said:

"My expectation is that this people will pass through a generation of such material prosperity and power as would amaze us could we see it now. We have an enormous start in the rivalry with other nations. Our universal education, the elasticity of our young social institutions, the unifying of our population through the limitation of immigration, the increase of efficiency of the people, and their saving capacity through the decrease in the use of intoxicating drink, our geographical isolation, our conservative spread of wealth through the people, and a hundred other considerations will make you the sharers in a prosperity and power unknown to history.

MUST BE OF PEOPLE.

"He who wills it, unless he be a misfit, may cut his slice of the rich melon and live comfortably by his own labor; he may live in luxury. But if he live to himself, eat his slice and pass none on to others, he has not the qualities of mind that we recall in the lives of those young crusaders.

"In the first place, if we are really to enjoy life, and feel the inspiration of the march of rank and file, if we are to have the satisfaction which goes with comradeship, we will count ourselves not one of a group or class, but one of a whole people, and we will, 'Whatever our calling, we stripped it to get under the load somehow, somewhere.

"Or to change the figure, unless we can pull a bit more than our weight, we do not belong in the boat. And remember that while some jobs, professions and callings have in them more chance for public service than others, the real test is in the spirit in which we carry through what we have in hand.

LIFE COUNTS MORE TODAY.

"Having lived among the prosperous and worked for years among wage earners, I want to tell you of the imminent change for the better in the relations of the various groups.

"The alert man of business or industrial leader who is a real leader counts himself the servant of all the people of the organizations, the laborers as well as the stockholders. It is in the long run good business as well as good morals that leaders, men, women and children count as they never did before.

"In the second place, we shall be a great country between two oceans: we cant help being one of the nations of the world and reckoning on that fact. I am not one of those who have been eager to hitch up in organic connection with the nations of the world. I do not esteem such a connection as only or chief test of international brotherhood. I believe, however, that if we, if you, cultivate and in your own person add to the integrity and character of this nation; if we become a people of public spirit, this generation of the next will produce the truest and the wisest method of expressing and enacting brotherhood."

ORATION BY WALKER.

Following the address by Bishop Lawrence, the seniors reported in the transept of Memorial Hall, marching in a body to Sanders Theatre where the formal class day exercises were held.

The oration was delivered by Philip Walker of North Brookfield, who in a dissertation on college life and what it stands for, declared that "all in all, the task of colleges today is to maintain an equitable balance between the many codes and aristocracies that are seeking to assert themselves."

The orator added that he hoped "that when we come to leave our millions to the University we shall mark the will annually with a vanity by leaving our name, and not try to leave our code as well. The colleges are all overburdened with specific bequests for outside purposes which endanger their equilibrium, as we see in the many sectarian schools."

The class poem was read by its author, John Marshall of Portland, Me., and the exercises concluded with the singing of the class ode, written by John A. Abbott of South Lincoln, to the air of "Fair Harvard." The singing was led by Alban Briggs, class chorister.

TREE EXERCISES.

Throughout the day music was played in the Fogg Lecture Room, Sanders Theatre, and other places, and plans were made in case of rain for many spreads indoors.

However, there were indications of fair weather for the tree exercises in the yard which were scheduled for 3.30, the tree oration to be given by Ramlet S. Miner of Rochester, N. Y.

It's Going to Be Big Day in Somerville

IS CLAD IN EVENING GOWN

Says She Is From South and Trying to Find Her New Home in Back Bay

It rained—a steady downpour, clouding the thin light of the early day, washing clean the streets and drenching a pretty blonde girl who strolled dreamily along Commonwealth avenue, without hat, cloak or shoes.

David B. Gallagher of No. 4 Taunton street, Roxbury, was out in the rain, dressed for it, and the sight of the girl, with clinging, rain-soaked pink evening gown, but without shoes, made him believe the downpour and the lights were playing tricks on his eyes.

They were not, however, and when he went up to the girl, she told him sleepily, but with dignity that she was trying to find her home in Gainsboro street, the Back Bay—more than a mile away.

Because she appeared dazed and uncertain, Gallagher took her to the Back Bay police station, where she told Captain Andersen she had come to Boston from New Orleans, after having suffered a nervous breakdown.

The Hub, she believed, would afford her a complete change in new surroundings. How she came to be out in the down pour at the Cottage Farm Bridge, however, she could not explain and despite the evening gown, she failed to remember any party.

The girl gave her name as Ruth A. Jenkins, thirty, and police today were endeavoring to solve the mystery of her early morning stroll through the rain while evidently in need of sleep.

PICKPOCKET'S VICTIM TRAPS THIEF AT DEPOT

When Peter W. Roberts of St. John's was a victim of pickpockets on Boston Common and was relieved of his pocketbook containing $103 and his railroad ticket home, he used common sense in seeking the recovery of his property.

Going to North Station, Roberts notified Railroad Policeman Albert Sullivan and the pair took up watch near the ticket office. It was believed the thief would endeavor to cash in on the ticket to St. John's.

Within a short time a young man appeared and tried to redeem the ticket. Roberts at once identified him as one of the two young men who had jostled him on the Common.

ROTARIANS INVITED TO DUBLIN IN 1927

Cleveland, June 16 (A.P.)—Political differences of the Republicans and Irish Free Staters were swept aside today as delegates from Dublin and Belfast united to extend to the Rotary International an invitation to hold the 1927 convention at Dublin. The invitation was signed, among others, by President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State; Rt. Hon. Lawrence O'Neill, Lord Mayor of Dublin, and Rt. Hon. Sir William Turner, Lord Mayor of Belfast.

The invitation was extended at the first business session of the sixteenth annual convention of the Rotary International.

N. Y. MAYOR WILL IGNORE JULY 4 AS DEFENSE DAY

Middleton, N. Y., June 16.—Mayor Abram B. Macardell in a statement today attacked the sincerity of the government in "making over" July 4 as National Defence Day. He urged all citizens to disregard the new significance of the day and to celebrate it in repose, pleasure and recreation. "I trust that every free born American citizen will celebrate the day in the same spirit," he added.

FIGURES IN AUTO'S MAD CRASH

Mrs. Mary Crehan, 25, of No. 7 Winfield St., who narrowly missed death when an automobile, running wild, dashed down a South Boston hill, smashing a light pole which struck her, is shown above. To her left is the home of John Tracey, struck by the car. Below is Miss Claire Tracey, No. 461 E. Eighth street, whose cry possibly saved Mrs. Crehan's life.

Speeding down Winfield st., So. Boston, a driverless motor truck crashed into a house with such force that it moved it from its foundation.

Mrs. Mary Crehan, 25, of 7 Winfield st., a pedestrian, was struck by a gas light pole which was hit by the truck and snapped off at the base.

Screams of Abbie E. Tracey, 60, undoubtedly saved her life. She was seated in a front window of the home of John Tracey at No. 461 East Eighth st. at the foot of the Winfield st. hill. As she saw the truck careening down the incline and coming straight at the house she shrieked in terror. Two of Mr. Tracey's daughters carried the woman to the rear of the house just a second before the crash.

B. C. GRADS PLAN BIG REUNION

Many new features have been planned for the annual alumni meeting and banquet which will be held by the Boston College Alumni Association on Thursday night at the college on University Heights in connection with commencement.

The graduates will gather in Assembly Hall at 6 o'clock. Following a business meeting and election of officers, a banquet will be served and an entertainment provided. Brief speeches will be made by prominent men. The main portion of the evening will be devoted to class reunions.

Graduates are urged to make reservations early with the alumni office at No. 450 Washington street. The committee in charge comprises: John T. O'Hare, '08, chairman, John J. Walsh, '16, and Gerald F. Coughlin.

EXTRY! GODDESS MISSING

Amherst, June 16 (A.P.)—Sabrina is a rather meaty girl and made of lead at that, but she is the goddess of the even numbered classes at Amherst College and this town, in the midst of commencement exercises, anyway, was thrown into a furore last night by the announcement that after three years in the possession of her rightful owners she had been discovered and stolen by the odd classes headed by J. W. Russell '25.

Sabrina's life is anything but a happy one, even though she is the idol of several thousand Amherst alumni, for several thousand more are her arch-enemies, and sworn to submit her to every possible degredation. Three years ago the even classes found her secreted in Connecticut and hustled her away to make her occasional brief appearances on the campus between spells of hiding.

She had been brought to Amherst presumably to appear at the Amherst-Williams baseball game today, but Mr. Russell found her buried beneath a pile of rags in a garage near the campus and carried her away. The announcement of her capture was made last night in College Hall, crowded with undergraduates and alumni back for commencement and within a minute every man had left to join one of two parties, one to seek the lost goddess and the second to guard against her capture.

All night long automobile parties scoured the roads, and mysterious groups of men dug into every corner of Amherst, but this morning she still was missing.

Today the ordinary events of commencement virtually will be forgotten in the mad hunt for the black goddess.

HUB MAN SEIZED AS 'KIDNAPER'

Police Charge He Aided Girl to Elope With the Man Her Parents Frowned Upon

None but a man gifted and endowed beyond his fellows can play successfully, even blamelessly, the role of third party to romance and so today Biagio Andessi of the West End was arrested, a victim, say the police, of generosity in amour.

No wings of the sly, giggling Danny peep out from the broad shoulders of Biagio and no arrow-filled quiver swings with his stride, but, in the words of the romantic coppers, let no one say that Biagio ever failed a friend.

Biagio is married and lives at No. 14 Willard street, the West End, and Philomena Gingandis of East Boston is fifteen and in love with the kind of a man she can't forget, say the police.

But against this unnamed Lothario the parents of Philomena have raised objections, say the authorities, and it is hard—so hard—when one's Pa and Ma look not well on the chosen suitor and pick flaws or overlook good parts.

THEIR GOOD FRIEND.

It made it hard for Philomena to see her man, say the police, and in desperation they turned to Biagio the big-hearted, who is thirty eight and just the man a girl would want to say for a big brother.

The romantic strain of the Latins responded in Biagio, say the authorities, and he agreed to spirit Philomena away to a rendezvous that she might see her man and maybe they would get married.

Philomena left a note at home, however, according to the police, saying that she had run away to marry the man she loved.

Today Biagio fell into the hands of Special Officers Lynch and O'Neil of the Joy street station, who arrested him at the North Station on a charge of kidnaping and arraigned him in Municipal Court. He was bailed in $1,000 pending a hearing one week from today.

GIRL IS MISSING.

Having performed faithfully his service in romance, say the police, Biagio returned to his home with a clear conscience.

Philomena, however, has not come back and the Providence police were asked today to try and find Lee in some one of the many Providence lodging houses.

Meanwhile the police succeeded in reaching on the telephone the man for whom the girl is declared to have run away with Biago. He was invited to visit the Joy street station to talk things over, but love, although blind, is not unwary in some things, and the invitation was not accepted.

Biago is convinced now that there is a very, very large crowd.

584 DEGREES AWARDED AT TECH

Faculty and Students in Academic Dress for Third Time in Institute's History

A throng of 3,000 parents and friends of members of the graduating class of Massachusetts Institute of Technology visited Dupont Court today to witness the awarding of degrees.

Of the 584 degrees awarded, 458 were for Bachelor of Science, 106 for Master of Science, five for Master of Architecture, six for Doctor of Science and nine for Doctor of Philosophy.

One of the degrees for Doctor of Science was awarded Lieutenant James H. Doolittle, celebrated army aviator. Another went to Per Keyser Frolich, well-known Norwegian scholar.

Dr. Samuel W. Stratton, president of the institute, presented the diplomas and degrees. Members of the faculty and students were in academic dress for the third time in the history of the institute. The processions started from the lobby beneath the great dome and moved across the main court between masses of pink and white rhododendrons. The 101st Engineers Band played as the procession entered Dupont Court, and the seniors took their places before the platform.

The invocation was by the Rev. Dr. George A. Gordon. Dr. Charles A. Coffin, former president of the General Electric Company, addressed the graduating class.

Major-General Andrew W. Brewster, commanding officer of the First Corps Area, U. S. Army, talked to the seniors and awarded commissions in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps. Dr. Stratton, Dean Henry P. Talbot, and members of the faculty held a reception in Walker Memorial immediately after the graduation exercises.

Tonight the seniors will have their promenade at Walker Memorial, the final event of Commencement.

MAYORS GUESTS OF ST. JAMES THEATRE

Tonight is "Mayors' Night" at the St. James Theatre, where the colored film version of Rostand's great comedy from the French "Cyrano De Bergerac" is now entering upon the last two weeks of its engagement. Mayor Curley, together with the mayors of forty other Massachusetts cities have been invited to a special performance of the picture.

An interesting point in connection with the screen version of "Cyrano de Bergerac" is the fact that most of the principals in the film version have played principal roles in "Cyrano de Bergerac" on the legitimate stage as well. Linda Morlia, who is cast as Roxane, the lovely heroine, is a favorite with Italian audiences and has appeared in this role many times in the Italian theatre. The same holds true for Angelo Ferrari, another Italian actor, who is cast as Christian.

Bolt's High Jinx

Thirty-seven-story Equitable Building, New York, hit by lightning. The bolt damaged the coping, showering the street, 485 feet below, with stone fragments. No one was hurt. The crash was heard for blocks in the city's skyscraper canyons.

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—The 37-story Equitable building in the financial district, the largest office building in New York, was struck by lightning today during an electrical storm which cooled off the metropolis after another torrid day. Howard Cox on East 58th street.

The elevator operator heard the bolt strike on the courtyard pavement. Hospital physicians said the boy was suffering from a possible fractured skull. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Russell, listed as from Pittsfield, Mass., were summoned.

'DOG DAY' HEAT FOLLOWED BY COOL WAVE

Humidity in Early Hours Today Added to People's Discomfort

Dog day weather hit New England today, two months ahead of time. A perfectly miserable time was had by everybody as a result.

As J. J. Bromide himself remarked, just before they killed him, it wasn't the heat so much as the humidity.

Temperatures weren't so terrifically high during the early forenoon. The mercury had climbed to 70 degrees by 2 o'clock this morning and at 9 it was only 71.

But the humidity was 68 or 18 points higher than normal, and there was every indication it would last all day.

The unofficial forecast was that it would remain cloudy throughout the day, clearing off tonight or tomorrow, and becoming appreciably cooler.

The heavy rains which began last night were sorely needed in New England, particularly in Western Massachusetts.

Reservoirs in that section of the State are lower than they have been for years and in some communities, such as Holyoke, the situation was actually alarming. The water company in that city had appealed publicly to its patrons to conserve water and guard against a shortage which might result in an epidemic of disease.

One-half inch of rain fell in Boston and vicinity. One and one-quarter inches fell in Portland, Me.

Rainfall has been general in all the country east of the Mississippi in the last twelve hours.

Today, however, there was a cool wave starting out of the Great Lakes country, and that wave will be here tomorrow unless it is unexpectedly delayed en route.

U. S. TO HEAR BERLIN ARTISTS OVER RADIO

Berlin, June 16 (A.P.).—Gratification is expressed in German radio circles at the agreement for the exchange of programs between German and American broadcasting stations. Two points in this connection were emphasized by one German delegate to the recent international conference here.

"It will make possible a much more economic use of broadcasting plants. Instead of limiting programs to afternoon and evening," he said, "artists can be employed also for America.

"From this development it is but another step to the general use of wireless telephony."

FRENCH WARSHIPS NOW ARE OFF RIFFIAN-COAST

Paris, June 16 (A.P.).—The French Cabinet today approved Premier Painleve's plans for a quick termination of the Riffian warfare in Morocco and it was announced that French warships had been stationed off the Riffian coast today.

M. Painleve arrived from Morocco, where he visited the French front, five minutes before the Cabinet session began.

The Premier reported to the Cabinet the measures he had taken in Morocco "to reduce to a minimum the risks and duration of the military operations there."

"SEVEN-ELEVEN" COMPANY PLANNING UNUSUAL BILL

A performance of unusual interest is announced for next Sunday evening at the Gayety Theatre, when the entire personnel of the "Seven-Eleven" company will offer a program consisting of typically negro melodies, camp meeting hymns, folklore ditties, negro spirituals and plantation songs. The presentment is being placed together by Garland Howard, Mae Brown, Speedy Smith and Sam Cook, authors and principals of "Seven-Eleven."

EDITOR LIVES TOO HIGH; COMMUNE OUSTS HIM

Moscow, June 16 (A.P.).—Communist and non-Communist circles alike were stirred today to learn of the removal by the controlling commission of one of its most conspicuous officials, M. Stekloff, editor of Isvestia, the official organ of the Soviet Government.

No reason has been announced for Stekloff's removal, but it is stated he has been "living beyond the Communist scale of existence and violating party discipline."

Descendant of 'Signer' and Eleanor Goodwin Married

Distinguished Company at Fashionable Wedding in First Church

Betty Alden

FRANCIS HATHAWAY CUMMINGS, descended from a "Signer" of America's most revered document, the Declaration of Independence, grandson of the late Robert Treat Paine and son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Cummings, Jr. (Lydia Paine), took unto himself a bride yesterday before a distinguished company in Boston's First Church, Berkeley street. Miss Eleanor Goodwin, the bride, and her family also are associated with the town's historic background. Her mother is Mrs. William H. Goodwin and her grandmother Mrs. Thomas F. Sherwin of Commonwealth avenue.

USHERS AND bridesmaids, a little flower girl, best man and maid of honor, all the usual accompaniment of weddings were there in the imposing entourage, to the number of twenty or more. Charles K. Cummings, Jr., was best man, little Constance Sherwin of New York the flower girl, and Mrs. R. Lloyd McAllister of Gotham matron. William H. Goodwin gave his sister in marriage and two clergymen, the Rev. Charles E. Peck and the Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, tied the nuptial knot.

KINFOLK AND college mates of Mr. Cummings as ushers were Robert Treat Paine, Jr., J. Lyman Paine, Jr., Sherman Damon, Henry R. Atkinson, Bentley Wirt Warren, Jr., Thomas Wales, Edward Cabot Storrow, Jr., Richard Chute, Edward L. Pierson, Jr., Bostonians all. With R. McAllister Lloyd, Jr., and David H. Morris, Jr., over from Gotham, they seated the wedding company and did the honors at Mrs. Sherwin's Commonwealth avenue home for the reception.

RAMBLER ROSES and blue lark spur were altar decorations. All in rose and blue chiffons with matching chapeaux were the prettily effective matron and maids, as escort for the bride in nuptial white. Wedding robes followed the established custom of fabric and line, white satin with treasured antique laces. There was a long train with tulle and lace and lustrous pale ivory satin.

MISS ETHEL CUMMINGS, sister of the bridegroom, with Miss Marion Williams, Miss Charlotte Smith, Miss Hilda C. Scudder, Miss Elizabeth Warner, Miss Mary L. Barton, Miss Louisa T. Beasley, young girls of the local younger set, and Miss Ourania Hodgkinson of Cincinnati were the bridesmaids' octet.

YOUNG Mr. Paine, needless to say, follows family tradition and is a Harvard man of the 1921 class. He also belongs to that smart aggregation of younger men, the Tennis and Racquet Club, and the Somerset and Yacht Club. The bride's social background is closely interwoven with the Vincent Club and the Junior League, with Ile de Ie line, the Sewing Circle. She came out in 1920-21.

AN enthusiastic gallery of Smartdum watched those lions of the tennis courts, "Bill" Tilden and "Vinnie" Richards battle for the Church Cup out at the Longwood courts one day recently. Of course, Miss Isabelle Mumford (herself a clever player) was there. Also Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer, watching intently every stroke and serve of those two tennis headliners.

MRS. GEORGE R. MUMFORD (mother of Miss Isabelle and the George, Jr., who soon marries Miss Alice Herrick) and Mrs. Richard Middlecott Saltonstall were there. I also saw the Saltonstall daughter, Miss Muriel Saltonstall, an enthusiastic tennis devotee and a devoted Longwood member. Mrs. Theresa Weld Blanchard (Mrs. Charles B.) whose matter, as everyone knows, is the skating rink and her sister, Miss Dorothy Weld, looked down from the stands at the lively exhibition.

THERE WAS A warm welcome awaiting Mrs. Andre Brewster, who met a number of friends for the first time at the tennis match following her very recent return from a Spring journey abroad. She and the General looked out to Chestnut Hill in their two-starred official car, which matches in its khaki tone the field regimentals of the popular General.

* * *

* * *

OF THE YOUNGER set's prominent members I saw Mrs. Gelston King, Mrs. David Sears (Ellen Phelps White), Miss Priscilla Waterman, one of the twin girls who made their bow last Winter; Miss Sally Dexter, daughter of the William Endicott Dexters, who also was presented brilliantly at a large ball in the past season.

* * *

ALSO MISS HARRIET ROYCE, Mrs. Sherwin Badger (Mary Bancroft, daughter of the Hugh Bancrofts of Beacon street), Miss Suzanna Dabney and Mrs. John Gorham Palfrey, whose four daughters, the Misses Mianne, Lee, Sarah and Polly, are youthful lights of the tennis world who promise to shine resplendently in future cup matches, when one judges too hastily.

(Photograph by Bachrach.)

Miss Betty Thorndike, vivacious and popular member of the younger set, whose engagement to John Patterson Duncan of New York and Newport is vastly interesting to her intimates. Her parents, the Alden Augustus Thorndikes, have a town house in Commonwealth avenue and a Summer home at Windsor.

ROMANCE AND THRILLS IN LOEW'S STATE BILL

A picture program of romantic interest and frequent thrills, gave the audience at Loew's State Theatre yesterday a genuine treat. The feature of the bill was "Born Rich," with Claire Windsor and Bert Lytell in the leading roles. In "Born Rich" the author set about to write an indictment of high society, aiming sharp arrows of satire at the foibles of the rich set. Although he sets out to ridicule the artificial lives they lead, he is not wantonly destructive in his criticism.

The companion picture was "Those Who Judge," a society melodrama starring Patsy Ruth Miller and Lou Tellegen. Its story deals with consequences that are apt to occur, when one judges too hastily.

GOOD PROGRAM OPENS AT LOEW'S ORPHEUM

It would be hard to find a better balanced program than that offered at Loew's Orpheum Theatre yesterday. Vaudeville of the highest grade and a photoplay of the rarest comedy value was on the bill. Heading the bill was Clay, Crouch & Co. in "Back Stage," with the Berg Sisters and Paul Murdock featured. This act was one of the best one-act comedies of the season. Another feature was Al. H. Wilson, a natural comedian, who presented a conglomeration of witticisms.

The picture was "The Cracker Jack," with Johnny Hines. The story hovers around a peppy college boy, who enters his uncle's business. It is the type of picture that will keep you laughing from one end to the other.

DANCE ACTS FEATURE GOOD BILL AT KEITH'S

It isn't very often that the top notch of musical comedy condescends to the two-a-day, but Mlle. Marguerite and Frank Gill saw fit to grace Keith's Theatre last night and treat the audience to one of the best dancing acts seen here in some time. They head a long list of good acts with much dancing, tuneful singing, and overflowing with comedy.

Heat didn't mean a thing as the actors did their stuff and the aforementioned pair gave as their funniest offering the European conception of American jazz.

Patti Moore, incomparable miss with her song and dance revue, was a pleasing number. A jazz band furnished the pep with Buster Maxsoles' lightning steps.

Belle Hawlyer and George Watts presented a rapid fire comedy act. Other acts included Fred Ardath with Earl Hall and Grace Osborne. Du Callon tells good stories standing on the top of a ladder. The Three Rudilleins and Allen Dixs and Harold Powers.

HUB ARCHITECT DESIGNS NEW TRAFFIC BOX

Carroll Bill Suggests Artistic Platform in Place of 'Hokey Pokey' Stands

In the wake of a wave of protest from merchants, motor club authorities and artisans of the Hub over the new traffic platforms, Carroll Bill, widely known architectural designer, submitted a novel and artistic design for a stand to the Boston Evening American.

Much derision has been occasioned by the present stands, Daniel Hickey of the Boston Motor Club terming them "hokey-pokey ice cream wagons on castors."

His observation was made especially to the stand at Washington and Summer streets, but as all the stands are similar, it is applicable to each.

"To have the traffic officer on the street where the most congested traffic is a good thing," Hickey said, "but who put him in a cage that looks like a shake bed or and covered by a dirty sheet?"

But Mr. Bill has a remedy for the "abominable" described by the Motor Club man, a remedy in the way of a Colonial type stand with fire-resistant roof as befits the life and architecture of old Boston.

The new stand would be of cast metal painted white with gray roof. The new platform would replace the "Hokey Pokey" stands now in use.

"Before being an old Colonist, with many of the old features remaining," said the Bill, "I consider myself quite modern and appreciate at once a unique Colonial design, and the four cards with a light reverse spot, not to be delicate shade, will give it properly carried out, quite a Colonial aspect."

Mr. Bill, who is at No. 575 Boylston street, Back Bay, is exceedingly interested in beautifying Boston and believes traffic stands true to the type of the Hub will do much in the way of dressing up the city.

ABOLITION OF CANADIAN GOVERNOR'S OFFICE ASKED

Ottawa, June 14 (A.P.).—Labor members in the House of Commons have started a movement to abolish the office of Governor-General of Canada in the interests of democracy and economy.

J. S. Woodsworth, Labor party leader, denounced the proposed $500,000 appropriation for maintenance of the Governor-General's office as a waste of money. The Chief Justice of Canada, Woodsworth said, could discharge the duties.

Woodsworth was supported by the Rev. William Irvine, Labor member for East Calgary. Both disclaimed criticism of Baron Byng.

George P. Graham, Conservative leader, eulogized Byng.

LEXINGTON TO GIVE PAGEANT TONIGHT

Cardinal O'Connell Among Crowd of 6,000 Routed by Rain at Opening

With the backbone of the latest heat wave believed to have been broken, but with the Weather Man predicting more showers, another effort will be made tonight to stage the historical drama-pageant "Lexington" in the town of the same name.

Costumers are working frantically today to repair the damage done to the costumes of the 1,500 participants in the pageant. Many of these were badly damaged in the deluge which the heavens unloosed during the initial presentation.

The 6,000 spectators, who were forced to seek shelter in the grandstand were the outdoor theatre could be admitted to an additional performance to be given the next night free of cost.

It is likely that as a result of the rainfall last night, the summer will be a wet one, according to the old-time weather prophets.

After seeing the pageant many days was a splendid array of performers drawn impartially from the armed forces and civilian life, Governor Cox said he was impressed. However, he regretted as did many others present, that the rain spoiled the pageant.

The pageant is designed to arouse in the young people that love for the traditions of their country which was so strong a characteristic of the men who fought in the Revolution.

It was a good natured crowd, however, according to all reports. Despite the downpour, and most of them seem to regret the fact that the pageant would have to stop. The rain continued to come down in torrents for more than a half hour, and every road leading from the pageant field to Lexington Centre was a miniature river. None escaped. Everyone was drenched before they could reach their autos or the busses, most of which were at least an eighth of a mile from the entrance to the pageant field.

WELL KNOWN YACHT CAPTAIN DIES AT 82

Plymouth, June 16.—Captain Nathan Watson, eighty-two, died at his Summer home on Clarks Island, Plymouth Harbor, after a brief illness. He was the last of the famous yacht skippers of his time and the last of the Watson captains of his generations.

ties, any one of which might have been selected as the prize winner without the judges being open to criticism. Miss Todd had been chosen "Miss Lawrence" by the lodge of her native city.

The race narrowed down to three girls, Miss Todd who has a wealth of long, blonde hair, Miss Anna Galloway, with long, dark curls, who was entered as "Miss Lowell," and Miss Alice Lelourg who was "Miss Newton," was the only bobbed haired contestant who was seriously considered.

The judges were unanimous in the selection of Miss Todd.

Today the ladies of the convention will be given souvenirs by a merchant in Lynn, after which they will drive to Gloucester and return by way of the North Shore.

Lynn Lodge, which has been acting as host to the visiting Elks, entertained the members at a luncheon in the dining room at the New Ocean House. The ladies of Lynn Lodge are entertaining the visiting ladies during the convention.

ISABELLE POPE TELLS STORY OF ROMANCE

McClintock's Fiancee Recounts How Shepherd Blocked Her Marriage

Chicago, June 16.—When Isabelle Pope stepped up to the witness stand again today to resume her testimony in the Shepherd case it was as if someone had opened a window in a fetid sickroom at the close of a long sweltering, sickened day and let in a breath from an old-fashioned garden with lilacs and cinnamon roses and mignonettes, blooming in the cool of the pleasant evening.

Miss Pope told of her first "not understanding" with Billy and how they kept it a secret because the Shepherds had made him promise not to become engaged to any girl at all until he was past twenty-one.

She told how he spent his time at "our house" every morning every afternoon and every evening all vacation time.

And then she told of the way Shepherd prevented her from getting a license so that she and Billy could be married when Billy was of age, and the excuses Shepherd gave and the falsehoods he told her—and every man and woman in that suffocating steaming room of packed humanity listened to Isabelle Pope's simple, honest story as if it had been a thrilling melodrama put upon the stage for their special delectation.

All the time that Miss Pope was talking, Shepherd stared straight ahead of him with a pale smile on his twisted lips and his wife, Julia Shepherd, not content with smiles, laughed her ironic and bitter laughter not once, but a dozen times.

LIQUOR CHARGE FAILS TO REMOVE TEACHERS

Richmond, Va., June 16 (A.P.).—Trustees of the University of Virginia today declined to take immediate action on the resignation of three professors, one of which has been found guilty of unintentionally transporting liquor. Dr. Albert Lefevre was convicted and fined $50 and costs. Dr. W. S. A. Potts and Dr. C. P. Howze were acquitted. Each was charged with transporting liquor driving an automobile while intoxicated and being drunk on a public highway.

COOLIDGE OPENS NEW ECONOMY CAMPAIGN

Calls Department Heads for Conference June 22; More Tax Cuts Planned

Washington, June 16.—President Coolidge today formally launched his 1926-1927 economy program, aimed at drastic cost-cutting policies in government which may be reflected in tax reduction in the Sixty-ninth Congress.

All of the President's direction department heads were requested by Budget Director H. M. Lord to attend the annual meeting of the government's business organization on June 22.

Plans to secure greater efficiency and economy for the coming two years will be outlined, according to Lord.

Coincident with the calling of the economy session came indications of a clash between the administration and advocates of tax reduction who feel government revenues can be cut more than $160,000,000.

While Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will submit no specific plan to Congress and will avoid an open break in new legislation, he opposes revenue reduction exceeding $300,000,000. A great cut would force the government to borrow money to meet expenses, experts said.

The Treasury revealed that the surplus for 1926 will be approximately $250,000,000, compared to the preliminary $273,000,000 estimate. Partially balancing this loss, however, was the probability that the 1925 surplus will exceed the estimate of $47,000,000 by $50,000,000.

The Treasury is against a revenue cut greater than the surplus, Mellon also opposes applying payments on foreign debts directly to tax reduction, holding that it is better economy to reach taxes indirectly by applying payments to the public debt. He favors a cut in surtaxes of 15 or 25 per cent.

Try to Kill Palestine Governor

London, June 16 (A.P.).—A dispatch to the Evening News from Jerusalem today said an unknown person last night fired through the window of the residence of Governor Abramson of the Southern District of Palestine, at Hebron, a town six miles from Jerusalem. It was said a heavy fine will be imposed on the town until the assailant is arrested.

DAVIS HOPES FOR TRUCE IN PLASTERERS' DISPUTE

Washington, June 16 (A.P.).—With Secretary Davis returning to Washington today to confer with representatives of the International Plasterers and Bricklayers' Unions, Labor Department officials summed up their proposals for settling a dispute between the two organizations to end the strike called last week by the Plasterers' Union.

The point at issue is whether the Plasterers' Union may organize in cities where the Bricklayers' Union already has enrolled plasterers in its union. The conference today was called with one purpose in the view of Secretary Davis, to bring the factions together on friendly ground.

CARROLL LIKELY TO MAKE BIG SHOW BOW HERE

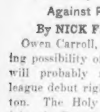
TO JOIN TIGERS AT ONCE

Cobb Needs Games and May Start Holy Cross Ace Against Red Sox

By NICK FLATLEY.

Owen Carroll, greatest pitching possibility of a generation, will probably make his big league debut right here in Boston. The Holy Cross wizard joins the Detroit Tigers tomorrow. He will be with them at Fenway Park the latter part of the week. And impetuous Ty Cobb is more than likely to chase him right into the game to see if all the advertising means anything.

Young Mister Carroll, it might be mentioned, will make good. He has the temperament and the ability.



Nick Flatley

And that's a combination hard to beat.

The world has been told very frequently of the youngster's wonderful record with Holy Cross—50 victories and two defeats in four years. The unverse knows that every big league club in the land was willing to give the kid a fortune to sign up. But the boy's personality has been hid den behind the glitter of his remarkable pitching.

Carroll, twenty-two years of age, is the most talked of ball player in the country just now. Everybody is waiting to see just what he will do with the Tigers—so is every manager. He's so popular and prominent that the movies have been chasing him.

But it hasn't bothered him a bit. He's just a fine, natural, rather bashful boy, like any one of a hundred you might pick out on the Holy Cross campus during the commencement celebrations. We trickled down to Worcester yesterday to see the young man in his natural haunts.

EVERY DAY BOY.

We found young Carroll knocking out fungos to a bunch of alumni. He was having a fine time for himself, chasing the old boys around under the blazing sun. The cares of the world didn't seem to rest on his broad shoulders. No one would have guessed that the dream of his youth—the big league try-out—was just around the corner.

He did seem a bit worried when we told him we wanted the story of his young life. He's one of those birds who let their deeds do the talking. Most of the really successful individuals in this world are that way. We did discover, though, that Owen has been pitching since he was ten years old. His first team was for a public school team in Newark, N. J.

He doesn't remember whether he won that one, or not. Says he probably was knocked out. But he has been pitching ever since. He became sort of a busy boy when he went to high school in Newark, a Catholic prep school like B. C. High or St. Anselm's in Manchester.

ONCE SHORTSTOP.

Carroll was a baseball regular for the four years of his prep school life. When he didn't pitch for the team, he played shortstop. We deduced that he was so good at short that the coach didn't know whether to use him as a pitcher at all.

"All I did was throw them then," he describes that section of his career.

One of the Holy Cross baseball alumni saw Owen with that school team, recommended him to Jack Barry, and the boy was brought to Worcester. Baseball at that time was his hobby, and he wanted to go to Holy Cross, where the teams were always good.

"We had no idea he was extra good," explains coach Barry. "They always come with big recommendations. But Carroll was there, from the first day he came onto the field. He had the ability, and he wanted to learn. He was the most earnest baseball player I ever bumped into."

Earnestness is one of the boy's principal characteristics. He's a good natured, cheerful chap, but he has plenty of determination in his make-up. He isn't going to be satisfied with being a great pitcher. He has plenty of ambition.

EAGER TO EARN.

He made sort of an agreement with the Detroit ball club when he was a freshman. He didn't sign anything like a contract, hasn't yet. But he gave his word to that club, and he's keeping it. He could have received an advance of at least $25,000 in cash for signing with either of two other clubs. He had $10,000 contracts offered him, a raw novice in a big league way.

His word was given, though, and that settled it for him. Carroll admits that the Detroit club has used him splendidly, that everything is fine and dandy that way. But keeping his promise will cost him more than most young men earn in their first two or three years in the cold, cruel world.

HIS VIEWS.

Following is Carroll's view of his chances in the large show:

"I hope I can make good." Only that and nothing more. You know though, he'll be trying with every thing he has.

The Holy Cross wonder is not a big boy, not the iron man type in physique. He stands about five feet ten, and weighs 165. He has fine broad shoulders, and a powerful chest—that's where he gets his pitching power. But he has the slim waist and rather slender legs of the athlete who has speed as well as strength.

When he was a kid Owen decided that big league baseball offered the best opportunity for a youth who wanted to get along rapidly in the world. And tomorrow he's going up to the real game. He shows what the right kind of determination, with the always necessary ability, can accomplish.

BRAVES CLOSE WINDY CITY ENGAGEMENT

Chicago, June 16.—The Braves finish their five-game series here today and still are in search of victory. They came into this town in seventh place but a series of untoward events shoved them into the National League cellar and then gave them a couple of added kicks for good measure.

The probable pitchers for this finale are: Jess Barnes and John Rube.

The game yesterday would have been a contest, omitting the Chicago home runs. Brooks, recently picked up in Columbus, hit two, Griffith and Hartnett one each. These counted for seven of the eight runs the Cubs made off Rube Marquard.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 41 Golf Champions. "Golf's Most Successful Teacher," Says Chick Evans.

As a golfer you have one consolation: Whatever it is that is holding you in the duffer class of players the chances are you can find it among these Ten Faults Most Common to Golfers, as I have observed them in experiences during 25 years of teaching golf. These Ten Most Common Faults, each of which I will discuss in order in succeeding articles, are: 1—Forcing the head to lift. 2—Lack of control of the club. 3—Forcing the club with muscular effort beyond its natural swing pace. 4—Rushing at turn from back swing. 5—Gazing at the ball with hypnotic stare instead of actually seeing it. 6—Gripping tightly with one hand, loosely with the other. 7—Pulling across ball. 8—Too rapid back swing. 9—Hanging too long over ball before making swing. 10—Too much experimenting.

Harvard in meeting Yale this afternoon on the Blue diamond at New Haven will close the college sport program of the season for the New Haven folks. Today's meeting is the first of the Red and Blue baseball series of the 1925 season and will help decide the championship of the 1925 season and will help decide the championship of the big three.

Yale is favored to win over their rivals from Cambridge who have taken more setbacks during the season on the diamond than the wood star flinger for the Red Sox, when Boston was fed up on pennant races, has had mighty fine teams. This year they have taken their steps backward in many tussles, although by their win in the first game over Princeton, they have the advantage to take home the bunting.

Invading New Haven to visit the Bulldog in his own back yard seems to be a disastrous for the Crimson lads. Phil Spaulding, one of the two Harvard pitching aces, is slated to go to the mound against H. W. Lindley (Lefty), the other Harvard star, is likely to be out of the series due to injuries.

MARIO BERGAMINI IN BIKE RACE AT REVERE

It didn't take Nat Butler long to secure Mario Bergamini's name to a contract, once Nat heard the Italian had starred in the cycling country. The director of the Revere oval is well aware of the ability of this lad from Italy.

Rated in Europe as one of the greatest all-around cyclists, Bergamini is equally at home in a sprint or a record contest. Following the motors a little less than three years, the Italian bids fair to rival any of America's engine chasers.

Tomorrow night Mario will make his first appearance at Revere in the 10-mile race. He opposed Charley Verkeyn, Frankie Keenan and Dan Pischone.

In addition to this race a Junior 10-mile contest will find John Gallo, Joe Mitola, Albert Crossley and Austin Hurley lined up.

BUSTER ROSS IS DUE TO DELIVER

A second bombardment of base hits and the tallies that go with it are expected by Manager Lee Fohl when the Red Sox battle the White Sox again this afternoon at Fenway Park. After yesterday's exhibition with the bat many of the mistakes made by the locals can be overlooked for it proved without question that though the Red Sox lack pitching and are at times a little erratic in the field they sure can hit.

The exhibition of Charlie Ruffing in the box in the first encounter with the White Sox may cause Buster Ross, roommate of Big Charlie, to try and duplicate the feat. Ruffing's work on the mound has been sensational because little thought was given the big fellow early this season.

He looked raw and Manager Fohl was thinking seriously of sending him out again for another year to brighten up the rough spots. Apparently Ruffing has found himself, as all promising rookies do, and at the present time is the most dependable hurler in the Quinn division.

The White Sox are due to play better ball today. Their first contest with the Red Sox is easily the poorest exhibition uncorked this year. Such performances are in the system of even championship clubs. The clubs meet in a double bill tomorrow starting at 1:30 p. m.

Millstreams Meet Nashua at Chelsea

By JOE CASHMAN.

Three of the four games on tonight's "Twi" League card will be staged within a short radius of the State House with the Millstreams home game at Merritt Park, Chelsea, overshadowing the others in importance since the league-leading Nashua nine will furnish the opposition.

Those not planning to attend the Chelsea battle will have their choice of watching Malden tackle Checkers at the Walpole street ground, South End, or the Chelsea Dilboy having it out at Dilboy Field Somerville.

The Chelsea clash will mark the first appearance of Nashua in Greater Boston for some little time and should attract a capacity crowd, especially since the Millstreams figure to be able to give the leaders a real tussle, somthing very few outfits in the circuit can do.

Upsate fans who wish to see a game this evening must travel to Reading where the Redfield nine will take on Abbot.

COOK PUTS UP DISMAL FIGHT WITH STRIBLING

STAYS 10 ROUNDS BY STALLING

Fans Urge Referee to Toss Australian Out of Ring; Georgian Easy Victor

By JACK CONWAY

George Cook can take the next boat back to Australia without any protest from the 5,000 fans who saw him lose to Young Stribling of Macon in a ten-round bout at the Commercial A. C.'s show at Mechanics Building.

As a fighter, Cook proved a very good wrestler. He should have been thrown out of the ring by Referee Johnny Brasill for holding. The Australian exhibited all of the holds of Strangler Lewis.

Jack Conway

The crowd was disgusted with the bout and repeatedly called upon the referee to toss Cook out of the ring. Stribling tried to make a fight out of it. He scored three knockdowns, two in the third and one in the tenth.

The first knockdown was scored with a right hander to the head, and the other two by right hand shots to the chin.

If Cook had opened up and fought as he was paid for doing Stribling would have knocked him out inside of five rounds. Cook received $2,500 for his end.

Stribling was paid $4,500. He starts on his trip to the Pacific coast today.

"Come on and fight, Cook," was the cry of the crowd. One fan yelled at Cook: "Why not put Stasiak in there"?

Between rounds Referee Brassill told Cook he would throw him out of the ring if he didn't stop holding.

Cook opened up and did some fighting in the seventh frame, but resumed his holding tactics after he had been socked with a few heavy punches to the body. Stribling's right eye was opened during a mix-up at close quarters. It was Stribling's round.

Joe Jeanson of Milwaukee lost to Tod Smith of Akron, Ohio, in the semi-final of eight rounds.

John Glacken and W. T. McDermott were the judges. Arthur Burns the timer and Ed Dixon referee of the preliminaries.

There was a capacity crowd on hand, despite the burning heat.

Ma Stribling was among the early arrivals. She took a seat behind the corner which was later to be occupied by her son.

Red Griffin of Chelsea knocked out Jimmy McGonigle of Weymouth in five rounds. A body smash did the damage. Griffin had dropped McGonigle for the count of nine in the second round.

Babe Stribling, a younger brother of Billy, was awarded the decision over Larry Bergolin of Cambridge in four rounds. Ma rewarded Babe with a kiss as he started for his dressing room.

RUNYON SAYS

Johnston Finds Prospect. Jim Sigman Comes On. Wins a Navy Heavy Title. He Must Have Improved.

—By DAMON RUNYON—

Copyright, 1925, by International Features Service.

JAMES JOY JOHNSTON, called "Jimmy," is one of the most indefatigable of the many Jasons who seek the Golden Fleece of Fistiana, which is the next heavyweight.

Johnston is a little man with a bristling manner, snapping eyes and coal black hair which belies his age. He is fifty. He has been following the boxing game for over twenty-five years, one way and another. For fifteen years he has been pursuing the quest for THE NEXT HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION.

Damon Runyon

This quest is a strange, fascinating phase of the boxing game. Once a man is infected with the excitement of the pursuit he never gives it up. He gets so a steely glare comes into his eyes at sight of a big, strong, young fellow.

YOU might naturally suppose that the lure of this particular form of chase is the prospect of the fortune that is to be made with a heavyweight champion. But the writer, after a long study of the heavyweight hunters, has come to the conclusion that the gold is entirely secondary in their consideration.

There is something beyond that. Most of the hunters could be getting rich by devoting their energies to producing smaller fighters, who are infinitely easier to find. No, it isn't the money. There is some thrill in the heavyweight pursuit, perhaps the thrill of the hunt for BIG GAME, that sends men to the jungles of Africa and the Arctic wastes, when they might be in safer territory potting quail.

JOHNSTON has looked over more heavyweight prospects than any living man, not excepting that other industrious Jason, Fred "Windy" Windsor, who seeks the Fistic Fleece in the Northwest.

Johnston conducted several heavyweight tournaments designed to produce pugilistic material. He personally inspected the efforts of over FIVE THOUSAND young fellows and failed to find ONE that he thought would make a fighter.

Now, at last, and quite by accident, Johnston has come upon a better prospect than he ever had before. The prospect's name is Jim Sigman, and he is a sailor in the navy. He has just won the heavyweight championship of the navy by beating Ted Snyder in the navy tournament held in Pacific waters.

SIGMAN is a tall, lanky young fellow with a natural left hand. He was attached to a ship in the East last Winter, and wandered into Stillman's gymnasium one afternoon and said he wanted to be a boxer.

Johnston tied on Sigman's first pair of boxing gloves and started schooling him. He liked the lanky fellow's style and spirit, and presently he got Gunboat Smith, once a real good light heavyweight, to coach the lad.

THEN Jim sailed away, and the next Johnston heard of him he was boxing in the Navy bouts, beating one heavyweight after another. He must have improved in amazing fashion to whip Snyder, who is a good boxer, and a whirlwind against raw hands.

It shows you how rapidly these young fellows come on. Sigman has a spearing left hand that was given to him by Nature. The writer thought him one of the best prospects in the tournament on his size, youth, and willingness, especially in view of the fact that he had no experience whatever.

But he didn't expect Sigman to improve rapidly enough to win a Navy championship in six months.

FINE POINTS OF DIVING ARE EXPLAINED

This is the second of a series of articles on diving by Madeline Berlo, who is to appear at Loew's Orpheum next week. In this article she explains the technique of diving.

By MADELINE BERLO.

In the first article I tried to stress the importance of arching the back in diving. Aside from its health and beauty benefits, it is an important point in diving technique. Four of the dives I will write of today are dependent almost entirely upon this for beauty of execution.

THE BACK HANDSPRING.—Lie on your back and reach back, arms extended, until your hands grasp the end of the board. Draw your body up until a vertical position is reached. At first your weight will be on your neck and shoulders; keep elevating your body until you are standing on your hands. Hold your position with your back arched, as shown in the illustration. Cast off, feet first.

THE HAND STAND.—Take a position similar to that for the back handspring, except that you lie on your stomach, going through the same maneuvers until you are standing on your hands at the edge of the board. This time, instead of going off feet first, stand, back arched, and pitch off in a vertical position, head first.

THE HAND STAND WALK.—This is a sister dive to the two foregoing. Drop into a hand-stand position so that your arms reach about the middle of the board when your arms are extended. Upon raising your body to position, standing on the hands, walk on your hands to the end of the board and cast off head first.

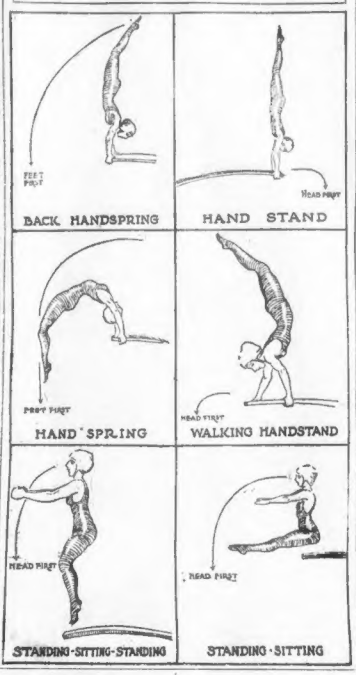
THE HANDSPRING.—Drop into a handspring position at the end of the board. Throw your body upward and out and describe a half circle in the air, striking the water feet first.

STANDING-SITTING DIVE.—Stand on the board, head erect, shoulders back, arms in graceful position. Cast the body upward, but not out, so that you will be able to combine these two perfectly, without a fraction of a second's hesitation between the sitting position and the casting off.

STANDING-SITTING-STANDING DIVE.—Follow the same line of procedure up to the point of sitting on the board. As soon as you come down in the sitting position, bounce up the spring board gives at the slightest movement into a vertical standing position. The minute you are on your feet, cast the body upward and out into a curve and come down in a vertical diving position.

Tomorrow's article will deal principally with the remainder of the dives not requiring somersaults and half circles.

Techinque of Diving Very Important to Beginner



HAMBONE IS IN BEST CONDITION OF CAREER

By RINGSIDE

The Hambone Kelley-Pat McCarthy ten-round bout at the Suffolk A. A. Show at Mechanics Building on Friday night has much of the same kind of glamor around it that was so evident when Jack Sharkey battled Jim Maloney.

This is probably because it is a natural local match. The illustrious Hambone comes from South Boston, while McCarthy hails from Roxbury. Kelley is stable-mate of Jim Maloney's and is managed by clever Johnny McGrath.

When Hambone and McCarthy last met, they battled before one of the greatest crowds that ever attended an indoor boxing show in Boston.

Real Interference

Listeners on the east coast of England report that they are having trouble receiving broadcast programs because of the interference which they are experiencing from various sources. One of the French stations is said to interfere badly with Bournemouth's transmissions, and ship stations come in for a good deal of the blame. But most of the trouble seems to be due to the government station at Caister.

REINARTZ ASKS AMATEUR AID

By JOHN L. REINARTZ
Radio Operator, MacMillan Expedition.

More than ever before is the need of the radio amateur, not only does he explore radio, but it is giving him the opportunity to explore the waste lands of the Arctic. North and there the condition under which radio must work.

This will be the second time that Dr. MacMillan takes radio with him to the north pole area, its application this trip differs from the first in that short waves will be used, that is below forty meters, the equipment will be capable of work on the six hundred meters, but it is expected that forty meters will be the highest wave that will get through the Arctic daylight to the states, possibly twenty meters will be the mainstay after the Bowdoin and the Peary arrive at Etah.

HAS GREAT EXPECTATIONS.

That the amateurs are going to be the greatest factor in the success or failure of this expedition all will realize, and an appeal by the operator in charge of communication during this trip is being made to his fellow amateurs through the publications of the United States.

The previous response for cooperation, especially during the period when short wave reflection needed investigation, was so great, that the writer has not yet been able to properly answer and thank the many recording amateurs for their very valuable reports, but it is hoped that they will find some compensation in the presentation of their portion of the work in Q. S. T., and it is hoped that some real valuable information will be obtained on the action of the short waves in the area of no darkness for six months of the year.

A few words about the transmitting and receiving equipment will not be amiss. The transmitter is designed for adaptability, each part being accessible without having to remove any other part to get at it, the frame is of wood and boiled in parafine wax, this combination having proved its worth during the writer's short wave experiments, and the design is a copy of the one in use at 1-XAM, except that it is overgrown, to match up with the modulation panel and the power supply panel, coles will be used as an experiment on the short waves and it is hoped it will get through.

3 SOURCES OF POWER.

Preliminary tests indicate that it will. Three sources of power will be available, 500 cycles, and two sources of DC at 2,500 volts, supplied by two K.W. generators driven by 32-volt motors. There will be two sets of 32-volt, 240-ampere-hour storage batteries, a charging generator and an auxiliary gasoline engine driven generator of 7½ horse power. The receiving sets will be capable of receiving all waves from ten meters up—the short wave receiver is the writer's old stand by, the Zenith-Reinartz circuit built especially for the expedition by the Zenith Radio Corporation's Laboratories, as are the transmitters, and the aerifins sets.

These embody the circuits of the larger sets, except that both transmitter and receiver are in the same cabinet, the waves to be used will be in the 40-meter band, both code and voice are to be used. When the planes are in flight, the antenna will consist of a wire stretched from the wing to tail, but when not in flight a 15-foot collapsible navy mast will be used.

Radio-Equipped Fire Engine

The latest apparatus to be fitted out with radio is a fire engine in San Francisco. The aerial consists of four wires fastened to the top of the machine.

RADIO TELEPHONE SYSTEM MAY EMERGE FROM MEXICO

Mexico City, June 16. (A.P.)—General Gustavo Salinas, chief of the army aviation department, with the aid of departmental experts, is putting the finishing touches to an invention which he believes will revolutionize radio communication.

Starting with the idea of developing a method to place airplane radio communication with their landing fields, he has developed his system enough to warrant the belief that telephone users in any city possessing a broadcasting station, by simple calling up that station can communicate with any person in any city of the republic enjoying equal telephone and broadcasting facilities.

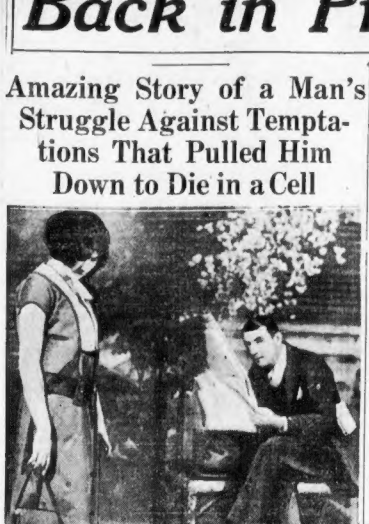
Back in Prison, Why?---By Donald Lowrie

Amazing Story of a Man's Struggle Against Temptations That Pulled Him Down to Die in a Cell



In the glare of the sun Ruth looked ten years older. To avoid embarrassment Lowrie buried himself in the newspaper.

(Posed for the Boston Evening American by Paul Porter and Irene Mayo of the Rose Marie Company now playing in Boston. Mr. Porter as Lowrie; Miss Mayo as Ruth.)

CHAPTER XLVIII.

ABOUT six months after Osborne became warden an election was held in the prison resulting in the overthrow of the "Silk-stockings." The prisoners, by popular vote, had already discarded the name "Golden Rule Brotherhood" in favor of Mutual Welfare League, but, at the same time had blindly returned to office the bankers and "highbrows" who had been in power before Osborne's arrival. At the next election, however, the men voted independently and the resulting board of delegates was almost entirely composed of "Roughnecks."

The terms "Silk-stockings" and "Roughnecks" had been given to the two prison factions by the New York newspapers. In reality there were no definite "party" lines within the prison.

This victory of the ordinary, everyday prisoners; despite the fun poked by the press, marked the beginning of genuine democracy within the walls, and from that time the league functioned smoothly, attracting more "outside" attention than ever. Many prominent persons visited the prison, including lawyers and judges, to observe the workings of the prisoners' court. Others came to study the self-government system in general or to give lectures or entertainments for the inmates.

Among these visitors were Governor Hunt of Arizona, John A. Mitchell, editor of Life; the lamented little Jean Webster of "Daddy Long Legs" fame, Charles Dana Gibson, David Bispham, John Burroughs, Henry Ford, Bishop Greer, Anne Morgan, Max Eastman, Mrs. Robert Ingersoll, John Reed, Senator Gore, Richard H. Hurd, Dr. Thomas R. Salmon, Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Mack and many distinguished foreigners.

Celebrities Promote Prisoners' Welfare

Scarcely a day passed that we did not have celebrities at lunch, tea or dinner. As a result of these visits many things were done to promote the welfare of the prisoners. The band received new instruments and music; the printshop, where the prisoners' paper, the Star of Hope, was produced, acquired an up-to-date motion picture projector was installed, baseball supplies were donated; courses in study were provided.

But one of the most important innovations, perhaps, was the organization of a knitting class, under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Shelling of New York. During a visit at the prison, Mrs. Shelling conceived the idea of having the prisoners learn to knit during their spare hours, and made the suggestion to Osborne. Mrs. Shelling, at the time, was actively working for the Polish Relief Committee, sending supplies of all sorts to the noncombatants, the wretched women and children in stricken Poland.

"Garments are needed badly," she said. "I wonder if the prisoners couldn't be induced to take up knitting."

"They will not need inducement," declared Osborne. "I'll wager they'll take to the idea like ducks to water."

Such proved to be the case. Mrs. Shelling, with three other ladies, appeared at the prison a day or so later, and four prisoners were selected to take lessons in knitting from the fair instructors.

Knitting Becomes Craze With Inmates

Of course knitting is not hard to learn, and the four who had been chosen, with a view to making them instructors for others, were presumed to be "bright." The novelty of being taught by the ladies, however, seemed to dull their minds and make them clumsy. It required lessons every day for a week before the quartet became finished products, and even then, they seemed disinclined to admit that they could go ahead and teach others without further instructions from the "outside" teachers.

But once the knitting started inside the prison the result was electrical. It became a craze. Marching to and from the shops, or while waiting in line for meals, men could be observed knitting, knitting, knitting. Some even took their knitting to court, or to the chapel. The idea spread to Auburn prison, and "Izzy," a Sing Sing prisoner, who had automatically risen to be knitter-in-chief because of his aptitude, was transferred to Auburn to instruct the men there. Tons of wool and hundreds of pairs of needles were supplied to both prisons by New York philanthropists, and a close check was kept on results. Many of the prisoners heeded garments for themselves, and there were still grafting guards alert for new ways of making illegitimate gain, yet there was little leakage. Without definite proclamation it became known throughout the prison that graft in connection with the wool supply or the finished garment would be considered a heinous offence.

64,000 Garments Are Shipped to Poland

The final checkup, made some weeks later, disclosed that more than 64,000 garments—socks, sweaters, chest protectors, mittens, caps—were produced by the inmates of the two prisons and shipped to Poland. Even the warden took to knitting. On several occasions I saw him sitting propped up in bed at 1 o'clock in the morning, after a hard day's work, knitting himself to sleep. The ladies tried hard to get me to learn,

Wedding Party, After Embarrassing Delay, Shift Scene of Event

Worcester, June 16.—Because the minister misunderstood the hour, Chester L. Whittle and Miss Marion Page were left "waiting" at All Saints Church on their wedding night.

They thought he was to be ready to make them one at 8 o'clock. He, the Rev. Henry W. Hobbs, rector of the church, understood the hour to be 8.30.

After an embarrassing delay, the prospective bride, groom and some thirty friends stepped over to St. Mark's Church and were married by the Rev. Levi T. Miller.

Mr. Whittle lives at No. 77 Lincoln street, and his bride lived at No. 2 Kendall street.

U. S. GAG PUT ON MISSIONARIES IN CHINA

Washington, June 16 (A.P.).—Anti-foreign agitation in the Canton vicinity is causing uneasiness in that place and nearby cities, Consul-General Jenkins informed the State Department in a dispatch sent from Canton June 14 and received today.

Tokio, June 16 (A.P.).—The Japanese government, impressed by the gravity of the Chinese anti-foreign situation, ordered four additional destroyers to sail for China.

London, June 16 (I.N.S.).—American missionaries in China have been warned to "shut up," according to a Central News dispatch today. Many of the missionaries are said to have been criticising the British policy in China, resulting in a warning from the American charge d'affaires that they must "not interfere in any way in the foreign situation."

Admissions have been procured from Chinese students, the dispatch stated, that they received funds from the Soviet Ambassador, M. Karakhan, to carry on the anti-foreign agitation.

British diplomatic circles are keenly concerned over the Chinese situation, but there apparently is little chance of any independent British action.

U. S. FLAG OVER MEXICO RANCH

Mexico City, June 16 (A.P.).—Advices from Puebla today said the Mexican Government had ordered troops to protect George Camp, American manager of the ranch at San Pedro Coxiocan, formerly owned by Mrs. Rosalie Evans, the English woman who was murdered by Mexicans. It was said that camp had filed a complaint with the American embassy against the Agrarian leader, Manuel Montes, for ordering the arrest of workmen employed on Camp's ranch.

Mexico City, June 15 (A.P.).—A despatch from Puebla says that W. O. Jenkins, former United States consular agent at Puebla, whose kidnaping by Mexican bandits in 1919 created a serious international situation, has hoisted the American flag over all his ranch properties in Puebla State. The despatch added that disorders were feared and that much ill-feeling had been caused because the Mexicans considered this action a taunt.

PRIEST TELLS OF PRAYER FOR 'BOOTLEGS'

Jersey City, N. J., June 16 (A.P.).—Picturing himself as "a mother pleading for a son in trouble," the Rev. George F. Bennett, Wrehawken pastor, today explained in court his prayer of last Sunday for the acquittal of twelve men now on trial as alleged members of a rum smuggling ring.

Responding to the questioning of Prosecutor George T. Vickers, Father Bennett, who is the State's chief witness, testified his prayer made no attempt to advance any opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendants, some of whom are members of his parish. It is the custom of the Catholic Church, Father Bennett explained, "when any of us is in trouble to offer up a prayer on his behalf."

Father Bennett repeated his story of his visit to the pier at the foot of Baldwin avenue September 4 and his discovery there of apparent bootlegging operations. He told of the bribe offered him and his refusal. He said he could not identify William Griffin, a defendant, as one of the smugglers.

PUNISHMENT FOR HIDING DISEASED CATTLE URGED

Providence, June 16 (A.P.).—Sounding the watchword of summary punishment for persons removing tags or obliterating brands on tuberculosis cattle, Dr. J. R. Mohler, chief of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry at Washington, advocated stringent laws in this respect, in addressing the sixth annual Eastern States conference on the eradication of tuberculosis in livestock, which opened a two days' session here today. More than 200 representing all New England States were present.

PERSHING TESTIMONIAL DINNER AT NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., June 16.—General John J. Pershing will be given a testimonial dinner at the Newport beach during his visit in July, according to present plans of the American Legion. General Pershing will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William May Wright of New York, who will pass the Summer here at "Maplehurst" villa.

TUNING UP FOR AMERICAN'S PRIZE FLIGHT

12 National Guard Fliers Ready for Tomorrow's Race

The twelve officers of the Massachusetts National Guard who will compete in The Boston American Prize Flight Contest tomorrow are ready for the word to "hop off" from Boston Airport.

Their machines have been tuned and they are not only ready but anxious, for the war-time tests that will be assigned. The Prize Flight is one of the features of the 156th anniversary celebration of Bunker Hill Day.

Prizes totaling $500 in value have been offered by the Boston Evening American to make the contest more interesting. First prize will be $200; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, Boston Evening American Cup; fifth, Boston Evening American Cup.

AWARDS AT 4 P. M.

These prizes will be awarded the winners at Bunker Hill monument about 4 p. m. tomorrow. His Excellency, Alvan T. Fuller, Governor of Massachusetts, has graciously accepted the invitation of the Boston Evening American to present the prizes. The winners will be presented to their constitutional commander at the time the awards are made.

Six pilots and six observers will take part in the race. The first of the planes will "take off" from Boston Airport at 9.30 a. m., and will be following at half-hour intervals by the other five. Each flight will consume two hours. The orders will be sealed so that the officers will not know until a few minutes before they start what they are to do.

Two planes will fly to Worcester, two to Providence, R. I., and two to Plymouth, thus giving hundreds of thousands of persons an opportunity of observing the efficiency of the National Guard airmen.

Residents of Chestnut Hill, Wellesley, Natick, Southboro, Framingham and Westboro will have an opportunity of observing the planes that fly to and from Worcester, while the residents of South Shore cities and towns will hear the hum of the engines of the machines that go to and from Historic Plymouth. The men who fly to and from Providence will pass over Wrentham, Mansfield and Pawtucket.

START AT MONUMENT.

The many thousands of spectators assembled in Charlestown for Bunker Hill Day festivities will have a chance to view all six planes as they ascend to a point 1,500 feet above Bunker Hill, before fulfilling the missions assigned. All planes will fly directly to Bunker Hill monument from Boston Airport. The first will reach there shortly after 9:30 a. m. and the others at half-hour intervals thereafter.

Several more prominent women, including members of the smart set, are to serve as patronesses for the flight. These include Mrs. T. Lothrop Motley, Mrs. Josiah Quincy, Mrs. Robert H. Stevenson, Jr., Mrs. Carrol J. Swan and Mrs. James M. Curley.

Two more leading aviators have praised the Boston Evening American for the enterprise and public spirit shown in arranging the prize flight. These endorsements are from Captain Harold R. Willis and Captain Chester E. Wright.

Italy for Security Pact

Paris, June 16 (A.P.).—The Italian reply to the French note answering Germany's western European security pact proposal was received today. Italy expressed sympathy with the general principles of the proposed accord.

COOLIDGE CHOOSES STAFF

Noted Cook Is Among Others Picked for Summer White House at Swampscott

The White House brand of buckwheat cakes and two-inch steaks will follow President Coolidge to his Summer establishment at Swampscott, it was revealed today.

Mrs. Julia Jongbloet, that cook extraordinary whose culinary art as displayed at the famous White House breakfast table is reputed to have won more than one recalcitrant member of Congress over to the administration cause, has been drafted for "foreign service."

When the President arrives at the North Shore next week, Mrs. Jongbloet will be installed in the kitchen of "White Court" and she will be only one of a considerable part of the White House staff especially imported to serve the executive and Mrs. Coolidge.

Attending to Mrs. Coolidge's wardrobe and other effects will be Katherine Gwynn, her personal maid; John May, elongated butler, all be "doubling in brass" as barber and valet to Mr. Coolidge.

Three miles away at Lynn, where the temporary executive offices are to be located, will be a highly effective skeleton office force under the direction of secretary to the President, Everett Sanders.

"Pat" McKenna, who knows and is known to every person of consequence that has visited the White House since 1903, will be on hand to weed out the undesirables and to see that those whose business warrants are interviewed.

Present also will be Erwin Giesser, stenographer to the President, and Miss Ellen E. Peck, stenographer to Edward T. Clark, the President's private secretary.

Handling the presidential telegraph wire will be E. W. Smithers, chief operator at the executive offices here.

Major J. F. Coupel and Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boone will look after the health of the presidential party.

The presidential aides, Colonel S. A. Cheney and Captain Adolphus Andrews, will be the executive for all formal functions.

Coolidge to Rest, Sanders to Take Over Lynn Offices

Washington, June 16 (A.P.).—While President Coolidge will be kept in constant touch with governmental affairs during his Summer stay at Swampscott, arrangements are being made to afford him as much relaxation and freedom from the cares of office as possible.

A clerical force of sufficient size only to handle matters that need the President's personal attention will be transferred to Lynn, where executive offices will be maintained. This will be Secretary Sanders' headquarters, but it is likely that the President will rarely, if ever, go there.

At White Court Mr. Coolidge will be isolated, guarded by Secret Service men and a detachment of marines. Persons desiring to confer with him will first be required to consult Mr. Sanders, and it is planned to keep the President's engagement list a minimum.

Both of the President's physicians—Drs. J. P. Coupal and Joel Boone—will be with him at Swampscott, and Mrs. Coolidge has decided to take along the White House cook, Louise Jongbloek.

5,000 GERMAN DOGS HOWL IN PROTESTING TAXES

Breslau, Germany, June 16 (A.P.).—Five thousand barking, howling, yelping dogs of every size and species from Giant Shepherds to diminutive Daschunds and from pedigreed Saint Bernards to nondescript mixed breeds were assembled on the Schlossplatz. Each bore a placard: "We Protest against 80 mark dog licenses." The demonstration was organized by dog owners after protests to the city magistrates proved unavailing.

Watch for These Fliers in Air Tomorrow

The following officers have been chosen to participate in The Boston Evening American prize flight contest tomorrow:

Pilot, Captain Clarence E. Hodge, and observer, Lieutenant George E. Sprague.

Pilot, Lieutenant E. S. Peck, and observer, Lieutenant Joseph K. Barber, Jr.

Pilot, Lieutenant Albert L. Edson, and observer, Captain Louis E. Boutwell.

Pilot, Lieutenant Chester F. Wright, and observer, Captain Donald E. Currier.

Pilot, Lieutenant Julian S. Dexter, and observer, Lieutenant Bert Devlin.

Pilot, Lieutenant Walter P. Muther, and observer, Lieutenant Conrad P. Richardson.

MINE RIOTING UNCHECKED

Sydney, N. S., June 16 (A.P.).—Incendiarism and looting attending the strike of 12,000 miners broke out with renewed vigor early today despite the presence of more than 500 Dominion troops and special miners' police.

The bank head screen of the unused Hub colliery of the British Empire Steel Corporation at New Aberdeen was destroyed by fire. Barbed wire entanglement had been thrown about the property, searchlights were playing and troopers were on guard throughout the night. How persons that set the fire swept through the lines could not be explained.

At Reserve the homes of two former employees of the company were burned down, the flames spreading to an empty powder magazine and carpenter shop before being brought until control.

Retail stores owned by private individuals at Brax D'or and Florence were looted by mobs of several hundred men.

The mines give the appearance of armed camps. More troops were reported on the way from Ottawa and Toronto, including detachments of the famous Royal Dragoons.

AMERICAN MAY BE RULED WINNER OF BALLOON RACE

Brussels, June 16 (A.P.).—The claims of the American balloonist, Wade T. Van Orman, that he won the recent Gordon Bennett Cup balloon race from Brussels apparently are being seriously considered by the commission, which will announce its decision Friday or Saturday.

Van Orman traveled 441 miles and landed on the deck of the steamer Vaterland, off the Ushant Light, France. Ernest De Muyter, Belgian, traveled 427 miles and landed at Quimper, Brittany. M. Veraatra, Belgian, traveled more than 400 miles. Under the rules a landing at sea and acceptance of assistance constituted disqualification. Van Orman claimed his landing, without assistance, on the deck of a ship did not disqualify him, as it was not a landing on the water.

SOUTH SHORE GIRL TAKES OUT POLICY

In the presence of an envious crowd of onlookers, about to board the "five-fifteen" for Weymouth, Miss Clare Maraget, No. 249 Randolph street, South Weymouth, attached her signature to an application for the Boston Evening American $7,500 accident insurance policy.

"I have been a daily commuter to Boston for the past three years," said Miss Maraget, "with nary a thought of accident insurance until I read of the wonderful offer being made to New Englanders by the Boston Evening American. The ease with which the policy can be taken out strongly appealed to me and I was overjoyed to learn that the $7,500 policy cost me the sum of only $1."

"I have told all my friends about my policy and they, too, have decided to commute without worry by becoming insured under the terms of your wonderful $7,500 accident policy plan."

There is no "red tape" to be cut. A coupon and a dollar bill will bring the policy direct to your door.

If you are a Home Delivery subscriber to the Boston Evening American all you have to do to obtain a policy is to clip and fill out the insurance coupon elsewhere in the pages of this issue, send it, together with a dollar, to the insurance department, Boston Evening American, room No. 304, No. 5 Winthrop square, and wait for the policy to be mailed to your home.

GAS COMPANY WOULD ADD $4,000,000 STOCK

The Boston Consolidated Gas Company today petitioned the Department of Public Utilities for authority to increase its capital preferred stock by $4,000,000.

The increase asked for would make the total capital stock $26,250,000. The company proposes to issue the $4,000,000 in 40,000 shares of a par value of $100 a share.

EARLY CANNING AND PRESERVING

EVEN although it is pretty hot weather I am getting requests in every mail for suggestions on canning and preserving, so that is going to be the subject of the talk this morning.

First about the utensils that you will need. After our little talk on the new cooking-without-water process in aluminum ware I received a letter from one of our club members saying that she understood that certain forms of indigestion could be traced to cooking in aluminum ware and wanted to know if it were possible for this sort of ware to create poisons in foods cooked in it. I think that the answer to this is that when Dr. Wiley was testing all sorts of cooking ware at the beginning of the war to decide which should be used in the United States Army and Navy, he chose aluminum as meeting every test.

Now for the list of utensils.

2 aluminum pre-serving kettles.	1 pair scales.
1 colander.	1 wire sieve.
1 aluminum strainer.	Long handled wooden spoons.
1 skimmer.	1 wooden masher.
1 ladle.	A few large pans.
1 large mouthed funnel.	Knives for paring fruit (plated are preferable).
1 aluminum can-ner.	Jars.
1 quart and 1 pint measures.	Rubbers. Tumblers. Covers for jelly glasses.
1 aluminum spoon.	Straining bag or straight steam-er. cheesecloth.

Iron or tin utensils never should be used. The fruit acids attack these metals and give the fruit a bad color or metallic taste—or both.

Because of the peculiar qualities of the metal aluminum utensils are recommended for the purpose of canning or preserving fruits.

Aluminum utensils are stamped from thick, hard sheet aluminum. There is no coating to chip off, the metal is not attacked by fruit or food acids, absolutely no poisonous compounds can be formed, and the metal will not discolor the most delicate foods.

THE OLD-FASHIONED WAY.

First I am going to tell you a little about the old-fashioned way, which, nevertheless, is a pretty good way, and is now called the open-kettle method:

By this method, the material to be canned is cooked in a kettle over the fire. After it has been thoroughly cooked, it is put into jars and sealed, the jars, rubbers and covers having previously been washed and thoroughly sterilized. Great care is necessary in using this method. In transferring the sterilized materials from the kettle to the jars, there is always a possibility that the material will again come in contact with micro-organisms which may cause the food to spoil after the jars have been sealed. If the jars, covers, rubbers, spoons, and other utensils that come in contact with the food materials are not completely sterilized, there is danger of reinfection. This method, however, must still be followed in making preserves, conserves, jam, etc., since in making these a certain degree of evaporation is necessary in order to reduce the material to the right consistency.

To sterilize the jars and covers put them in a kettle and cover with cold water, heating gradually to the boiling point. Let them boil ten or 15 minutes, remove from the water, and fill them at once. Sterilize the rubbers by dipping them in boiling water.

And now a little about the new way:

THE COLD PACK METHOD.

This term is used because the food material is first scalded or blanched for a few minutes in boiling water, chilled by dipping at once into cold water, and then packed in the container, covered with liquid — either water, syrup or juice, depending upon the food material being canned — the rubber put in place, the cover of the container put on lightly, not tightly, and the container placed in the canning outfit for sterilization. The containers, rubbers and covers previously should be washed but not necessarily sterilized. If new jars are used, they may be put into warm water and allowed to heat gradually until the water reaches the boiling point. The jars can then be allowed to cool slightly before they are packed with the food material. This process tempers the glass somewhat and lessens the possibility of breaking.

CANNING OUTFITS.

Though the cook has found that food may be canned in the wash boiler, or even in a lard can, she has also discovered that the period of sterilization is shortened in a canner which has a slight steam pressure, the result of a well-made, close, tight-fitting lid.

COLD PACK CANNING.

Scald means to pour boiling water on food material or lower food material into boiling water and allow to stand about one minute.

Blanch means to pour boiling water on food material or to lower food material into boiling water, bring to boiling point and allow to boil a given length of time, depending upon the vegetable being canned. Cold dip means to chill by dipping into cold water.

Covers—With Mason Jars, when putting the jars into the cooker to sterilize, screw the cover until it begins to draw on the rubber, or as tight as you can screw it with the thumb and little finger, using little or no pressure. With glass-top jars provided with clamp, place the wire that goes over the cover just up to the first glass elevation on the lid. If the wire is placed between the two glass elevations on the cover, it may hold the cover too snug and cause it to break.

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS.

Do not have the water cover the jars when using the wash boiler or similar container. Experience has shown that there is more difficulty with the rubbers becoming soft where the water covers the jars. If the cover is kept on the container, the steam retained above the jars will sufficiently sterilize the products.

Seal the jars at once without removing the covers when the process of sterilization is complete and the jars are removed from the container. In sterilizing food materials in the jars, some liquid always cooks out. If the cover is removed to fill the jar level full with boiling water, the air coming in contact with the food material in the jar may carry organisms to it which will later cause the contents to spoil. When the rubber and cover are placed on the jar and the jar is sterilized, the contents of the jar are sterilized. This includes not only the food material, but also the liquid and any unfilled space. Therefore, even if a portion of the food material in the jar is not covered with liquid, it cannot spoil, because the entire contents have been completely and thoroughly sterilized.

Do not attempt to tighten covers of screw-top jars after the jars and contents have become cold. When the process of sterilization is complete and the jars are removed from the container, the rubber is moist and warm. Warm rubber compresses readily and sticks. When the cover, therefore, is screwed down tight, the seal is made. After the contents of the jars are cold, an attempt to tighten the cover may loosen it from the rubber and the seal be broken; thus the air will get into the jar and carry organisms that may later cause contents to spoil. This may be done with fruit without so much danger of loss, but no risk should be taken with vegetables, as they are more difficult to keep.

Do not remove the cover, even if in screwing down the rubber should push out from under the edge. Unscrew the cover a little, push the rubber back into place, hold it thus with the left hand while screwing the cover down with the right hand. The seal is made if the rubber is under the edge of the cover all around.

Occasionally the edge of the cover will cut off the outer part of the rubber, but as long as the rubber is under the edge of the cover and the seal is made, there will be no spoilage.

Return the jars to the canner for further sterilization, if for any reason the cover should have to be removed. Twenty to thirty minutes ought to be sufficient for this sterilization.

It is not necessary to sterilize jars before filling them. Two sterilizations for jars — before and after filling—are not required. The jars should be thoroughly washed and cleaned before filling.

My Romantic Husband

A Sequel to "Ways of a Husband"

I FOUND that the sparkle w[illegible] from the thought that [illegible] wanted to telephone Ralph [illegible] Jeanie—and that things [illegible] so worked out for me that I could be with him without making a positive gesture to raise [illegible] It was not that [illegible] are unstable and [illegible] constant change and flux [illegible] I realized that I was letting myself be a puppet.

I couldn't help asking myself why I hadn't the courage to tell [illegible] Ralph when I wanted to see him. Since I hadn't the gumption to do that simple thing. I saw again what I had glimpsed in the [illegible] moment in my office when Ralph had prevented me from being swept by a momentary impulse. Since I won't reach out toward Ralph [illegible] crisis when I need his friendship how can I believe I will ever [illegible] loose from the thraldom I live in, which Jim holds me and try to build my life anew in terms of what a man like Ralph [illegible] has to offer?

So during the evening as Jeanie tried to [illegible] the element of drama and emotion into a [illegible] that was [illegible] relative to Ralph or me, I found myself standing off—detached, remote, conscious that I was in a bondage I had not the strength nor the sternness to break.

One very odd thing occurred just after dinner. The maid brought in a package and handed it to Jeanie who promptly [illegible] the string and opened the box which had been given her. From innumerable wrappings of tissue paper she lifted out a blue glass bottle of odd design.

Nothing clicked in my brain until Pat darted forward and seized the blue bottle, wresting it from Jeanie's hand and almost staggering as he ran to the window. Then I realized how like Jeanie's bottle was to the blue vial Ralph had torn from my hand when he and Johnny Trench and I were searching Lucie's dressing room for some clue to the means whereby her state of coma had been induced. Before I could pursue my mental searchings further Jeanie was blinking like a child who tries to hold back the tears, and she was starting across the room to keep Pat from carrying out his evident purpose.

"Don't! Please, Pat—that's mine. You shan't throw it away," she cried.

Pat paid no attention. He flung the window wide. And with a flourish of his right hand he was about to cast the offending blue bottle from the window when Ralph leaped into action.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My nephew is going to marry but I will not receive an invitation as the wedding is small, only the sisters, brothers and parents of both sides to be present. But they will send announcements. Is it necessary to send a wedding gift?

MRS. M. K.

A WEDDING announcement does not "require" a wedding present in the sense that a wedding invitation more or less takes one for granted. But as a matter of fact the sending of any kind of present should depend on only one thing, your wish to give the present. Also, in the wedding that you describe the announcements are much more of the value of an invitation, since the wedding is so small. A nephew is a very near relation and probably you would feel that you wished to send some gift, even a small one. Nowadays there are so many delightful and useful detail presents that the choice fits every pocketbook.

DAILY SHORT STORY

CLAIRE BLAKE from the depths [illegible] of a big chair was [illegible] her husband. Nothing [illegible] garden as he [illegible] and seated himself [illegible] ing light.

Big and Strong

How big, strong and quiet he looked; like a wall that you could not beat down nor make an impression upon. No matter what happened, he would look like that while she lay beaten and broken at his feet.

If he would only speak—say something, though every word was like a flash—she might be able to bear it. But the awful silence was full of unknown and unspoken thoughts [illegible] had loved him [illegible] was no doubt in her mind about [illegible] but now she hated him because [illegible] between her and [illegible] she longed to dance and sing and [illegible] the carefree crowd from [illegible] which he had coaxed her [illegible] to.

The chilliness of his stately [illegible] like a light frost upon a flower [illegible] spoiled without [illegible] outright. Two years had taught her [illegible] adjustment was impossible [illegible] nature like hers.

"Dan, why did you marry me?" she asked suddenly.

He looked up from the book he was reading, but his steady eyes told no tales.

"Probably for the same reason you married me."

"Not a very flattering opinion—for us," she said in a bitter voice.

He laid the book on the table and crossed the room toward her. She was frightened, for he stood looking down on her without a word. When she could bear the silence no longer, she said in a clear, defiant tone:

Questioned Her.

"I am going to leave you, Dan."

"In what way have I failed you, Claire?"

"It's unlikeness. I am lonely, depressed and tired of this stately routine."

"You did not feel that way at first."

"There was warmth and sunshine in our dream," she answered with deep emotion.

"Then we woke up and lost our dreams in a work-a-day world—is that what you mean, Claire?"

"I have only one life to live," she said in self defense.

"And I have only one to die," he answered. "The latter told me things I did not know. Not for an instant would I think of holding you if you are not willing to stay; even marriage does not give one that right.

"Your life is your own to use or abuse as you choose. If you want to go back on the stage, I'll arrange it to your satisfaction, but I do not take it kindly from your old manager to tell me of my duty to you and the world—his world."

"What will you do?"

"I have been planning for some time a trip to the South Seas. I hoped to surprise you. You would love the sunshine, the warmth of color and the life so free and dream like."

"I am sorry," Claire said regretfully.

All Arranged

In a few days it was all arranged, but Claire was not happy as she had thought to be with her old freedom regained. Somehow she no longer fitted into the old life. It was like a tale that is told and not to be repeated with the same interest.

Many of her friends had passed on and new ones were not to her taste. She found herself lacking in her old ability. In her small apartments she felt cramped and cheap after the big house where she had been mistress for two years. More than once she cried herself to sleep like a tired child, hungry for sympathetic arms.

She grew thin and worn as the days passed. Conscious now of her foolishness in looking backward in years of forward for happiness, she longed for her home and husband, but he came not. In fact she had not seen him since she returned to the stage.

She had tried to call him up on the phone, but it was always answered by one of the servants. It would soon be time for him to start on his trip to the tropics. How she longed to go with him.

She remembered now how kind he had always been to her. His business had often called him away or occupied his evenings, but she knew now that work was a fact, an important part of life. If she had only recognized this sooner and taken part herself in making a home, the break would never have occurred.

One night, having learned that her husband was not at home, she used a key to a private side entrance and stole into the library.

The room was dark except for the light from the wood fire on the hearth. Breathlessly she crept softly toward the big chair where she had so often sat and dreamed. As she put her hand on the arm, she saw her husband sitting there with his eyes on the dancing flames. He had not heard her enter.

Into His Arms

Without a word he drew her into his arms and held her close. She cried from sheer happiness. It was such a safe place for a weak, foolish woman.

"I am going to stay until death parts us, Danny. Marriage does something to you—you can't pull well single if you are accustomed to go double."

"Amen!" Dan said reverently.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

THE swimming season is now here and while the pretty bathers are deciding on what to take off, the censors are getting ready to make them put it back on.

TWO piece suits will be the law and girls will have to wear both pieces at the same time.

EVERY year the censors make them wear more clothes. It won't be long before a girl will have to get dressed to go in swimming.

THESE censors seem to think that what they see will hurt our eyes.

THE average censor is so narrow minded that he can't put his face in his hands without cutting his fingers.

REFORMERS should be sent to China where their heads could be used for making Ma's Jongg tiles.

THERE'S a great demand on the market now for cheap sets.

For the identity of these and other live SERVICE-MONEYSAVERS, Turn NOW to the CLASSIFIED ADS.

THERE'S enough bone in a censor's forehead to make seven hundred and thirty-eight East Winds.

AND there'd be plenty of material left over for a few pairs of dice.

THESE reformers have no special profession. We get a business and they mind it.

A PRETTY little stenographer spends her hard earned money for a bathing suit and then she has to ask some stranger if she can wear it.

IT'S getting so that a girl has to secure a permit to show her ears.

IN another year she'll probably have to wear gloves to keep her knuckles from shocking the neighbors.

NOT only that, but it'll be considered immodest for a dame to take her hat off in public.

IF the censors had their way they'd put screens around the ocean.

THEY'D allow each bather ten gallons of water and a curtain.

AND every time a pretty girl went in swimming she'd have to pull the shade down.

ONE censor says he is against swimming altogether. He must have seen his wife in a bathing suit.

HE'S afraid of sights, and yet he goes and marries one.

THERE'S only one cure for a reformer who's against bathing. Send him to Russia and give him a calendar which has nothing but Saturdays on it.

SOME PEOPLE THINK

That a baseball player should be sent to jail for stealing bases.

That a train robber is a sleeping car porter.

That all cigars are made of cabbage leaves.

That endowing a chair in college merely pays for upholstering it.

That all farmers get up at 4 o'clock in the morning.

That there should be stockings on the legs of chairs and tables.

FAMOUS FIRSTS

By Mark Stuyvesant

"ALL the world loves a lover" —and a baby!

The much-talked-about "tired business man," however cross he may be with his deathless associates, is never too tired to play with the baby. And the young lady who is in such a hurry to get to the dressmaker's can always find time to pat a sweet baby's head. Even young men, when no one is looking, will dandle a younger sister or brother on their knees, although they may be too supercilious to admit it.

It is this universal love for children of all ages and sizes which attracts thousands of people to baby shows each year. Every Summer resort advertises as a feature of its mardi gras a beauty contest and a baby exhibit. Of the two, the baby show is the more effective attraction because in it there are no poor losers.

The very first baby show held in this world took place in Springfield, O., on October 14, 1854. Although the plan was really conceived in fun, the newspapers of the day referring to it as "infantry in arms," the idea was received with almost wild enthusiasm. Letters were received from proud mothers all over the country who wished to make entries early. One mother referred to her adorable infant as "the heaviest baby of the age' in the world. The child was five months old and he weighed 27½ pounds.

At eleven a. m. on the appointed day the infants were mustered inside a large tent, while disinterested adults were made to wait outside. Nine ladies and six gentlemen were then chosen to act as judges and their duties outlined to them. These were to examine carefully each entrant and eliminate the ineligibles, and to award the prizes.

While the respective mothers, elated with pride and anxious to see justice done, were holding their breaths preparatory to the awarding of the premiums, a telegram was received saying that a large assortment of babies was due from Dayton on the twelve o'clock train. This news caused much consternation on the part of several "little darlings" who voiced their indignation in no uneven tones.

Newspaper reports show that the women, while waiting, regaled each other with accounts of the merits of their respective offsprings. One mother pointed with pardonable pride to the chubby legs of her little one. Another boasted that her baby was the "smallest and smartest" of its age, and one young mother even whispered modestly that her daughter would be the most beautiful woman in the world—later on.

Meanwhile the delegation from Dayton, Ohio, arrived with much pomp and ceremony. The new entrants were registered, weighed and examined, and did their best to add to the general confusion. By this time the crowd of spectators had grown enormously and enthusiasm was at a high pitch. The newcomers were welcomed with tears and shrieks by their brother contestants and the exhibit was in full swing.

The judges, notes in hand, retired to a nearby house to weigh the most made a cloud over the clear water of the lake—there were so many.

They fluttered in mid-air, for a moment and then they dropped.

We stood fascinated. Down they swooped and entirely surrounded Bobby's boat.

"Ducks!" shouted Bobby.

"Sure as you're alive," I agreed.

"They must have been taking a flight around the city and come home again," said Bobby. "I guess this lake is their home."

"Nothing like that," said Bunny. "They're transients. They're only stopping in the city for a few hours."

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"Here comes one," said Bunny. "You'll see for yourself."

Near us swam one of the flock of ducks and I saw in a moment that it was mallard duck. There was his green waistcoat and his pure white collar.

"But what are they doing here?" I asked.

"They've been spending the Winter south and are on their way to Canada. They just wanted to have a look at New York," said Bunny.

"For pity sake," I gasped. "Wild ducks in Central Park."

Just then the leader gave the signal. Up they started and off they flew in the sky like a fleet of aeroplanes in formation.

Again our attention was given to the boat, and as she came about in the wind and headed for shore again, Bobby said:

"What shall I name her, Foxy Grandpa?"

"How about 'The Wild Duck,' Bobby?" I asked.

A STRANGE SIGHT IN CENTRAL PARK.

By Foxy Grandpa

IT was a lovely Spring day, and early that morning when Bobby saw how fine the weather was, he came running to me and said:

"Foxy Grandpa, don't you think today would be a good day for me to try out my boat?"

"Today is the day, Bobby. We'll start for the park right after breakfast.

Bobby was a proud boy that morning, and I must say he had reason to be, for his boat was a fine one and showed the careful work the little fello whad put into it.

And the sails—he had invented Mary, the cook, into making them for him and they were snowy white.

We entered Central Park and walked straight for the lake. There were some other boys there already sailing their boats, although it was very early. As soon as they saw Bobby with his new hark they all ran over to him, and I laughed as I saw all of the young heads examining the new member of the fleet.

Bobby set his sails, and lashed the tiny tiller and overboard he launched the tiny craft.

She took the water bravely, her sails filled out, she listed to port and right up into the wind she pointed and made straight for the opposite side of the lake.

"Congratulations," I said, taking Bobby's chubby hand. You've built a real seagoing boat."

It did my heart good to see his blue eyes shine with joy as he watched his little boat sailing away across the lake.

Then something happened. Right over Bobby's sloop, there suddenly appeared a flock of birds. They al-

NEWLYWED WAILS

By NAT N. DORFMAN

GIVE the average man a Summer's night, a moon and a pretty girl, and the good Lord be kind to him!

Not all proposals lead to marriage. Take the case of the romantic poet who proposed that the girl of his heart work after marriage so he could stay at home and write.

More than one hammock with a pretty girl in it has proven man's downfall.

Skirts are going to be worn up to the knee this Spring. All of which means a lot of girls are going to openly show men two perfectly good reasons why they should be courted.

It's not the initial investment in marriage that counts, but the crockery upkeep.

Anybody can tell a couple of honeymooners. Who else but a new groom would carry his own wife's grips?

So many insipid men get married these days that it's little wonder the wives desert their bred and bored.

If, as woman claims, her face is her fortune, can you envisage a picture of what the cosmetic manufacturer has to say on the subject?

A mid-Western town has started a campaign to clean up the town with this picturesque slogan as an inspiration: "Chase dirt!" To make the campaign efficacious the first things to be done must be the removal of all party lines and the abolishment of all sewing circles.

One of the chief troubles with marriage is that the only recipes the average wife tries out on her spouse come in cans.

There seems to be a diversity of opinion as to where the Garden of Eden was actually located. It seems to us any bachelors' club is Paradise, and these are easy to find.

IDLE THOUGHTS

Be patient! No amount of hustling makes the flowers come up before Spring.

Don't be so ambitious—then you won't be so disappointed.

Thought is far swifter than action!

LISTEN, WORLD!

I HAD lunch today with Jim. Jim's a mechanic in one of our biggest garages. We're old friends, and every little while Jim 'phones me and we breeze down the alley and absorb a slab of steak together.

Funny thing about those 'phone calls. I'd known Jim a long time before he called me the first time. Met him when his wife was so sick after their last baby was born and I used to go out and clear up for him in the evenings.

So there was nothing unusual in the fact that Jim asked me to eat with him during our mutual lunch hour. But what WAS funny was the tone in which he asked it.

Voice Packed Wallop.

I've seen a Fighting Face? One of those mugs that are always looking for a chance to start a row — fairly smelling around for an insult, as it were? Well, that was Jim — only it wasn't his face—it was his VOICE.

If ever a voice packed a mean wallop it was Jim's. The words themselves seemed cordial enough, but there was a nasty sneer and suspicion behind every one of them — as if he were rolling up his sleeves and spitting on his hands while he said them.

I couldn't hardly believe my ears. Good-natured old Jim talking like THAT. However, I decided that he probably had a grouch against his boss or a hang-over or something. So I accepted and met Jim promptly at the appointed hour where the fried onion twineth.

Queerly enough, Jim's expression at our meeting matched his voice. Polite enough, but sorta circling for a clinch, you know. For a minute I hesitated about going in with him.

Generally I'm keen for excitement, but when I'm tired I like my meals without murder. But I certainly craved that steak, and in we went.

"Maybe he'll be better when he's fed his face," says I to myself. Sure enough he was. Sirloin hath charms to soothe the savagest beast and by the time we reached the apple pie Jim was telling me all about it.

It seems he'd had a bunch I wouldn't go with him. Probably I'd feel I was too tony to go out with an automobile mechanic. That's the way most of the White Collar snobs felt about the boys in overalls.

"What snobs, for instance?" says I. "Who ever turned you down, Jim?"

Well—no one had ever exactly turned him down. He wasn't such a dumbbell that he'd risk getting turned down. But I could bet my gizzard that if he HAD asked 'em he'd have been turned down.

Those birds with fancy jobs always DID turn an honest working man down. No one on earth had any use for an honest working man. Just as if a working man couldn't appreciate swell things as much as any other guy. But did them White Collar fellows believe that? Not on your life, they didn't.

They thought all the fine things and the swell friends and the classy houses were for the birds that got their money from some lousy will instead of working for it with their own mitts.

I am giving you the words just as Jim hit them off. They were violent words. They were also hurt words. Behind them one glimpsed a cankered wound which had tortured Jim all his life. The wound of class suspicion. Ever since he was a little kid, Jim had felt that "the capitalists" and the guys with the fancy jobs were against a fellow who worked with his hands.

No Longer Hostile.

Had he ever met an unfriendly capitalist or a mean guy with a fancy job?

No, he hadn't. He'd taken darned good care NOT to meet 'em.

Then how did he know how they'd act if he'd never met them?

Well, he KNEW. And that was all there was to get out of Jim. He KNEW. So sure was he that the White Collars were just itching for a chance to insult him that he suspected even me of similar longings.

Hence the Fighting Voice and the Threatening Look. And, lo, instead of a Deadly Foe I was still the same old friend and fellow worker!

Jim isn't as afraid of the White Collars any more. He has broken down his self-made barriers of hostile suspicion—he has almost rid himself of his inferiority complex—HE HAS STOPPED BELITTLING HIMSELF AND TO HIS SURPRISE AND JOY HE FINDS THAT NO ONE ELSE WANTS TO CARRY ON THE JOB.

There's a big thought there for us all—White Collars or Blues. We hate the other fellow, not because he has really harmed us, but because we refuse to leave our ambush of bitterness and suspicion and meet him in the open.

WOMAN'S BACK STOPPED ACHING

I Suffered Three Years. Relieved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Paul, Minn.—"I have a little girl three years old and ever since her birth I have suffered with my back as if it were breaking in two and I had a bearing down feeling all the time. I also had dizzy spells and was sick at my stomach every month. I had read several letters from women in the newspapers and the druggist recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to my husband for me. As a result of taking it my back has stopped aching and the awful bearing down feeling is gone. I feel stronger and do all of my housework and tend to my little girl. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for constipation. I have recommended these medicines to some of my friends and you may use this letter as a testimonial if you wish. I will be pleased to answer letters of other women if I can help them by telling them what this medicine has done for me."—Mrs. PRICE, 147 W. Summit Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota.

MOTOR BLOCKS OUR AUTO SALES IN ENGLAND

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

From men who have made expert study of the situation, I have it as the consensus of their opinion that until the British horsepower tax on motor cars is materially reduced, or until American manufacturers create a car with smaller bore motor, which will thereby get around this high tax, the sales of American passenger cars in England will be more or less limited.

* * *

British manufacturers produce cars of a design with small bores. The annual tax on them, therefore, is much smaller than on the American cars of a similar carrying capacity. One very popular American producer's output in England is about 90 per cent. trucks and but 10 per cent. passenger cars, due to the fact that the annual tax on the passenger car is about $115, I am told. On similarly sized British made cars with small bore motors the tax is around $60. America's truck tax is $80.

Cohasset, long a favorite resort for Boston business and financial interests during the Summer, is blossoming forth busier than ever this season. Publisher C. W. Barron, who has been at Battle Creek for some weeks, expects to return to his Cohasset home before July 1.

Frederick E. Voegelin, vice-president of Case, Pomeroy & Co. tells me: "The railroads of the South are making a strong showing in net earnings, due to the general prosperity that prevails in that section of the country."

* * *

United States Attorney-General Sargent, who joined the governmental forces at Washington from Vermont, has one of the busiest offices to be found at the national capital, I am told. The rule in certain sections is to loaf while the sun shines, but in the Green Mountain State it is to "make hay while the sun shines," and Attorney-General Sargent lives up to his home rule. Recapitulating business transacted by United States courts, shows cases and other proceedings pending at close of April, 1925, totaled 162,675, with nearly 18,000 cases pending in southern district of New York, and more than 11,000 in eastern district of that State. During ten months ended April 30, 1925, more than 114,000 cases were terminated and 126,000 new ones commenced.

* * *

In five months of 1925 member companies of Association of Life Insurance Presidents, which have in force 81 per cent. of total national policies booked $4,324,798,000 new business, increase of 14.6 per cent. over same period last year.

* * *

President Storey of Atchison says although carloadings on Atchison have been running substantially ahead of last year, earnings will not show a proportionate increase. While May earnings were about the same as last year, earnings in June and ensuing months will show material decrease from like period last year. Mr. Storey bases his opinion on the fact that various economic movements have changed the outlook during remainder of the year so far as earnings are concerned.

FINANCE
—By B. C. Forbes—

How far is electricity destined to go in lightening our daily burdens and enhancing the joys of life?

I have just been mixing a lot with leaders in the electric light and power industry, and you may be interested in getting some of their comments.

Those who hold utility securities, including customers who are in process of becoming owners, will be particularly interested in what is said about the recent spectacular speculation in numbers of utility stocks.

* * *

There is space in this column only for brief statements from a few leaders, other statements may be given in a later column.

Guy E. Tripp, president Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company:

"The only danger I can see threatening electrical development is an ill-informed public opinion. If our power companies were to be subjected to treatment similar to that accorded the railroads, electrical development will be hampered by restricting private initiative and drying up the sources of capital for new work, and the chief losers in the long run would be the people themselves."

Frank L. Dame, president of the North-American Company:

"The population of the United States increased 42 per cent. from 1902 to 1924. Meanwhile, electric output increased 2,300 per cent. and the per capita use of electricity increased 1,512 per cent.

"Immediately the question arises as to whether the saturation point is near.

"Approximately 9,000,000 of the nation's 22,000,000 homes are yet to be wired. Only about a third of the country's industries are getting the cheap and dependable power available through central station service. Rates are becoming lower and lower. The average price today of electricity is 8 per cent. less. Big though it is, the electrical industry is hardly out of its swaddling clothes."

J. J. O'Brien, president of H. H. Byllesby & Co.:

"The popularity of utility securities combined with an easy money situation, has brought a speculative element into these securities, particularly stocks, with the result that a large number of utility stocks are selling at prices beyond their immediate intrinsic worth.

"Such a condition has surrounded public utility properties with an atmosphere of excessive profits unjustified by actual conditions.

"I do not like to see the public misled into a false idea of utility earnings and thereby induced to retaliate by agitations for unreasonably low rates and oppressive legislation."

Charles G. Dubois, president, Western Electric Company:

"We must be willing to tell the public about the industry and about ourselves. We want people to buy what we have to sell, not grudgingly, but gladly, because they recognize that they get real value when they purchase electrical commodities and electric service. If we do a good job the public will demand a bigger job, and with confidence will provide the industry with funds which are necessary to provide for our measuring up to these increasing responsibilities of public service."

Friendship Best Guard of U. S. Property in Mexico

EDITOR, BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN:

CHICAGO, June 16.—I note that the newspapers generally take the position that the reply of President Calles of Mexico to Secretary Kellogg is defiant. I do not think that this is a fact.

We should realize that President Calles has said just about what our government and our people would say under similar circumstances. In fact, he has said just about what we did say when the League of Nations, under Japanese insistence, attempted to interfere in our domestic affairs.

No one is more anxious than I to see American life and property protected in Mexico both for patriotic reasons and for personal reasons. The question is how these can best be protected. I do not think that antagonizing the Mexican government and people by offensive words and veiled threats is the way to protect American life and property best, but rather to protect them least.

President Wilson deeply offended Mexico by hostile naval and military demonstrations and then, when he had aroused the whole of Mexico to hatred of Americans, feebly and fatuously left the Americans in Mexico to their fate. I am sure that President Coolidge cannot find anything to imitate in the discredited policies of President Wilson.

As a matter of plain fact, there are only two ways of protecting American lives and property in Mexico. One is by force and the other is by friendliness, and as I do not think that the well-disposed American people have the slightest intention of employing force, there remains only the policy of friendliness, which can be made perfectly effective if advanced with complete sincerity and with a proper appreciation of the problems with which Mexico has to contend.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Don't Worry About Atheist

They Are Few and Not Important

The Constitution says that this government must leave religion alone. All are free to believe what they choose concerning things after death and "Divine law." If they believe in the Constitution and obey the laws made here on earth, they can think as they please about the hereafter.

Every once in a while an effort crops out to make religious teaching a function of government. Somebody thinks that religion should be forced on every child in every public school. You are told that all crime is due to "Godless education."

When you point out the fact that several of the most conspicuous of recent murderers never had ANY public school education, there is no brilliant answer forthcoming.

In White Plains there is a lawsuit based on religion in the schools.

It was decided that once a week children should be released from school work for forty-five minutes in order to receive religious instruction.

Somebody called that an "entering wedge." Perhaps it is. But Mr. Stein, who brings the suit to enjoin the Board of Education from allowing the forty-five minutes for religion, is altogether "too fussy."

Public school hours are too long. If we understood education, no child under fifteen would be kept in school for more than three hours a day. If parents want their children to leave school for forty-five minutes to be taught any particular brand of religion, that should be allowed. Let government keep away from religious teaching. Let parents administer to their children as much of it as they please AT THEIR EXPENSE.

Those OPPOSED to Mr. Stein say forty-five minutes recess for religion is necessary, no matter what the Constitution may say, because "no child should be allowed to become an Atheist."

That children become Atheists, Seventh Day Adventists, Christian Scientists, Mohammedans, Buddhists, Theosophists, Spiritualists, Doukhobors, is not the business of the public authorities. This country in religious matters is FREE.

Concerning Atheists, or Atheism, it isn't necessary to worry much about.

The Atheist, who denies the existence of a beneficent, just and directing power in the universe, is about as intelligent as a fly buzzing inside a flying express train WOULD be if it said, "You can't tell ME, I know that there is no engineer on this train. It JUST RUNS."

You can sympathize with the ancient agnostics who said, "We affirm nothing, not EVEN that we affirm nothing."

They may have been looking for the truth, and perhaps they found it.

But the individual who says "There is no God," the self-sufficient Atheist, is as pitifully foolish as the other individual who tells you "The only REAL God IS my God, and I have the only genuine description of Him. I have Him patented and copyrighted. I can tell you everything about Him, just what He wants, what He thinks, and especially what He will do TO YOU, if you don't believe as I do."

Excepting the superstitious, fanatic and bigot who would like to force his religion on others, there is nothing more offensive to common sense than the blatant Atheist. But there is no need to worry about either—Atheist or bigot.

The Constitution of the United States takes care of both.

Inquisitive Uncle Sam

How tough is beef and what is the chewing power of false teeth? What are the most popular sizes of women's stockings? How dense is denatured alcohol and does a solar eclipse interfere with radio? What is the warmth of blankets?

These questions are not gleaned from the vaudeville stage. They are serious problems to the Bureau of Standards of the Department of Agriculture of the United States, whose investigators are making tests to ascertain the answers.

Every experiment is expected to reveal facts of financial importance to producers, manufacturers or other commercial interests. When Uncle Sam is inquisitive he is not inspired by idle curiosity.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

"CHEATING," according to the Johns Hopkins University students, "is the lowest of all the vices."

* * *

But, don't misunderstand them! This means cheating in business, in sports, or at cards—it has nothing to do with cheating in love. That is listed under another name, under the lighter vices.

* * *

Helen Rowland

It was a MAN who said, "All's fair in love!" — and all men since have echoed that sentiment and added a silent "Three Cheers" and a grand "Amen!"

* * *

But a woman is SO unreasonable.

* * *

Cheating, as every woman ought to understand, is cheating only when you take somebody's money under false pretenses.

* * *

Cheating isn't cheating if it's merely taking somebody's devotion under false pretenses. That's merely "playing," "flirting," "stringing her," or at the worst, "sheiking."

* * *

A lie is not a lie when you tell it to a woman—it is merely 'expedience or an alibi." Before marriage, it is an occasional luxury, but after marriage, it is a positive necessity!

* * *

Deceit is NOT deceit when you practice it in a flirtation or a sentimental affair—it is merely "diplomacy." A man has GOT to use diplomacy in handling a woman. She is so "sensitive" before marriage—and so "suspicious" afterward.

* * *

Subterfuge is never subterfuge when you practice it on your wife. It's merely "kindness," or "consideration," or "sparing her from unhappiness" or something else noble and altruistic.

* * *

A promise if you make it to a woman—it's merely "stalling," "keeping the peace," or "good policy."

* * *

Stealing is not stealing if it's only robbing a girl of her illusions or her chances to marry some other man. That is just "passing the time."

* * *

And as for kisses—they are like books and umbrellas and after-dinner stories, which you pick up wherever you can, without any conscientious scruples. Any man will tell you that!

* * *

It's awfully hard for a woman to get all this straight in her mind. She hasn't a man's logic and her ethical standards are so different.

* * *

She will lie to anybody else on earth sooner than to the man she loves—and of course she can't understand why a man will lie to the woman he loves sooner than to anybody else on earth.

* * *

She simply doesn't "UNDERSTAND" a man! That's all.

Savings All Gone

Helping Hand Editor:

Since I came back from France rheumatism has affected me more or less and since last September I have been out of work and my savings all gone. The doctor says I need forty injections of arsenic at $2 each. The Soldiers' Relief can't help me because I failed to return $30 for the same trouble long ago. I am in despair. Can't you help me in some way? A. P.

Children Need Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

I am writing to ask if there is some kind person who could help me as I am out of work and badly in need of clothes. Am married and have girls 9, 4 and 2 and boy 10. I wear size 38, shoes 7. Please also try and get the children clothes. JAMES.

Left Without Anything

Helping Hand Editor:

My husband has deserted me and I have a baby 14 months old and am expecting the stork again in July. He left me without anything. My furniture has been taken away and I have a room with my brother, but he has a large family and cannot help me. I would appreciate some infant's clothes and for myself or 36. I haven't even a cent to pay a doctor. ANNIE.

Sends Best Wishes

Helping Hand Editor:

I want to thank you and Mrs. McL for the great favor you did me. I highly appreciate it as I was in great need of an ice chest and no way to get one. Will you kindly send Mrs. McL my thanks and best wishes? MRS. S. O.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

OH, fair the gifts life brings us, who sojourn here awhile, and sweet the songs life sings us, who revel in her smile! For many a shining treasure in eager hands we clasp, and many an hour of pleasure our greedy fingers grasp. But, as sometimes we ponder the days too sweet to last and turn our gaze off yonder into glowing past, one golden age we vision when life was perfect joy, a glimpse of scenes Elysian with naught of Earth's alloy. Through childhood's sunny hours how life seemed to rhyme, when all the days were flowers upon the tree of time! For then, like sunlight beaming always to guide our feet, our Mother's glance was gleaming, our Mother's smile was sweet!

TAXATION ON SALES A FAIR LEVY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE underlying difficulty with our present system of taxation is that it starts from the wrong basis. A man should be taxed on what he spends and not on what he earns.

The former tax would increase thrift and restrain extravagance, while the latter tax penalizes success.

If Henry Ford has built up a great business that nets him a hundred million dollars a year he is entitled to the usufruct of that business. None but the envious and discontented would gainsay this.

By fortuitous concourse of ability and good luck he has achieved the success that many of us has failed to get. To all the profits of this success he is entitled, for he uses it in making others successful.

Unfortunately in taxation we have proceeded upon the principle of getting money wherever it was found. And upon the corollary to this, that those people in possession of great wealth have no right to it; it belongs to the people.

It is the theory of the robber and not of the honest man.

President Coolidge is commendable in his efforts to cut down the expenses of government. But no efforts to cut down expenses can do away with the necessity of paying the enormous debt left us by the war.

This debt could easily be paid by the levy of a tax on sales, and not on earnings. Such a tax would not be felt by the great mass of the people and would be easily collectible.

At the present time it is necessary for the government to keep a great army of clerks and experts in order to check up on how much every man earns.

There are many injustices and evasions in the carrying out of this scheme. If we are appalled by the extent to which the Volstead law is evaded, we should be still further appalled by the extent of the evasions of the tax law.

Taxing sales means taxing something that is open, unconcealed and unconcealable. It would be a fair levy upon the whole ability of the country. It would conserve capitalism and encourage capital to invest in productive enterprises, whereas the present system discourages capital and drives it into all sorts of non-taxable byways.

WHY IT IS EASIER TO PULL THAN TO LIFT

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"I would like to put up to you a question that has me puzzled. If I carry a hundred-pound weight I am using 100 pounds power to hold it up. Now if I put the weight on a cart that weighs 50 pounds, that makes a total of 150 pounds. But I only use about ten pounds in pushing the cart. Can you tell me where that extra weight goes? Kindly answer in your own way.—B. S.

THE cart carries the weight for you. In pushing the cart, together with the weight upon it, you have only to overcome the resistance of friction.

Part of the resistance arises between the cart wheels and the ground, because the latter is more or less rough, and part arises from the wear of the axles in the hubs, etc.

When you walk with the weight in your arms you are obliged to counterbalance by muscular effort the force of gravity drawing the weight downward, while at the same time you keep your body, together with the weight, moving in a horizontal direction.

But as soon as you put upon the car the burden of holding up the weight, you have only to overcome the resistance to horizontal motion. Gravity does not directly oppose horizontal motion, but only tends to cause friction, as we shall see.

In such a case as yours while the principle is perfectly clear, the explanation is obscured by the complicated character of the resisting forces which we group moving a body like the block in under the name of friction. To simplify the matter, let us take an illustration.

Here, on a smooth table, we have pictured a sliding block carrying a weight, as your wheeled cart carries its burden, and attached to the block, by means of a cord and pulley, we have a pulling force, or weight, "W," which represents you pulling the cart.

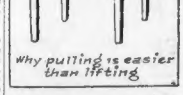
Now, in mechanics there is a fact, for called the "coefficient of friction," which determines the resistance to be overcome in the picture. This coefficient is represented by the letter "n," and when it is multiplied into the downward pressure exerted by the body to be moved, it shows the force needed to overcome the horizontal resistance.

Put into a formula which you may carry in the vest pocket of your memory, it reads F=nP. But "n" varies in different cases, and its amount must be previously ascertained by experiment.

For instance, if you have smoothed stone sliding horizontally on smoothed stone, "n," expressed as a decimal fraction, is between 0.56 to 0.65. If smoothed timber slides on smoothed timber, "n" is between 0.25 to 0.45. If dry metal slides on dry metal, "n" is between 0.15 to 0.20, while if the metal is oiled "n" shrinks to no more than 0.1 and maybe as little as 0.01.

Just to carry out the principle we take exactly the figures you give and make the pressure on the table 150 pounds and the pulling force ten pounds. In that case what must the coefficient of friction be? It must be one-fifteenth, or in decimal form 0.0666.

This does not prove that a ten-pound pressure would actually move your cart. Either more or less might be necessary, according to circumstances, such as the roughness of the ground, the condition of the bearings, etc. I have simply taken your estimate.



In the case of wheeled vehicles, however, it is not the sliding but the rolling friction, or "traction," that is considered, though the fundamental principle is the same.

The coefficient of "traction" is usually represented by "m," and its amount for an ordinarily smooth earth road is about 0.1; for a good gravel road 0.08; for a macadam road 0.04; for hard asphalt pavement 0.015; for a railroad track, at slow speed, 0.003.

These estimates vary somewhat among different authorities. They are, of course, based on experiment.

I am glad you asked this question. I am convinced that half the world does not know what simple intellectual pleasure, to say nothing of real power and advantage, may be had from a very little attention paid to every day physics and mechanics.

It is really easier than "cross-puzzle" work, quite equal in entertainment, and at least as educational.

ONCE-OVERS

WHEN YOU FEEL OFFENDED WITH YOUR BUSINESS ASSOCIATES IT MAY ALL BE DUE TO A MISUNDERSTANDING

Recently a certain woman was accused by comparatively new acquaintances of being selfish and unaccommodating.

One of her old friends took up the cudgels in this fashion:

"If you had been imposed upon repeatedly because of your good nature, and you were in a position where every moment must count, you would have things have less patience with thoughtless persons."

That woman through necessity had set a certain goal to reach within a given time.

The fact that this was not known to her best friends, even, was one reason for lack of understanding in her case.

Knowing her own limitations and the short space of time which would elapse before she must make a definite move requiring all of her ability, both physical and mental, she dared not assume more.

However, there were criticisms of her and those who knew her least, attributing her absorption to egotism.

Only one or two stood by with faith to believe that she was just.
